Missionaries Among Us
Water and Air Waves
A Mania for Excess
Fearfully Made

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

LAST SUNDAY Hindu gentlemen distributed at the entrance of Mr. Rockefeller's and other New York churches hand bills saying: "Christianity has outlived its usefulness," asking the public to embrace Hinduism.

That seems to us outrageous. But we finance devoted missionaries that do the same thing in foreign countries. The mote in our brother's eye is always visible.

Old British builders of wooden ships who said ships made of steel would sink in heavy storms would be interested in the Leviathan's latest trip.

She reached New York yesterday with her forecastle deck smashed, deck structures badly twisted by a wave said to be 150 feet high, that dropped 1,000,000 pounds of water on her deck at once.

Men build ships that the ocean cannot sink. Water waves are heavier than air waves. Airships will soon be built that no air wave will worry.

St. Paul reports a mania of endurance contests among children. Two boys kept one kite flying 48 hours. Sylvie Moskowitz bounced a golf ball 3,716 times without stopping. Another girl skipped the rope 535 times. A boy beat her by 50 skips.

A going-without-sleep contest started the thing. This type of excess explains the fact that heart disease threatens to hold the death championship in the United States.

The case of Miss Irene Hamilton, 27 years old, about to undergo her 19th blood transfusion to combat pernicious anemia, should make the average human being grateful his body is "fearfully and wonderfully made."

While we work and while we sleep, blood is manufactured, with red corpuscles to do the building and white corpuscles to fight disease. That blood is transformed by the gallon into other fluids of the body and retransformed into blood over and over. In each of us a marvelous chemical and physical laboratory is doing work of which we know nothing.

Chicago criminals admit planning a kidnaping campaign expected to yield $1,000,000. If the friends of the kidnaped failed to pay, the kidnaped would never return.

The penalty for that crime is death, but that made no difference with $1,000,000 in sight.

That kidnaping is unpleasant, but not as bad as in old days of the "Jacquerie" in France, when there were 70 local families in one year, and peasants, tired of eating the bark of trees, kidnaped and ate each other's children, or seized travelers and ate them. In one hiding place were found 45 skulls of travelers thus devoured. There is SOME improvement.

Fresh from pleasant pastimes and musings of Easter, the bulls returned to Wall st. yesterday more lavish than ever. Prices went up all along the line, more than 4,000,000 shares were sold, New York banks called $35,000,000 in loans, but that bothered nobody. It is hard to discourage a determined bull.

Smallpox is raging in Mexico, 650 deaths within a few days in the state of Jalisco. Investigation will show that in habitants of that region do not "believe in vaccination." They call it scientific folly or have superstitions of it.

In China because of famine, caused by poor crops and constant war, girls 10 years old are offered for sale at $10 Mexican

DECIMO O.K. READING TOLD N. Y.

WITNESS SAYS PRIDE DECLARED WOLFE HAD GOT AWAY WITH $50,000

Atty.-Gen. Reading, as early as last May, gave the Decimo Club a clean bill of health to the office of the attorney-general of New York State, it was testified today before the legislative committee investigating Reading's conduct in office.

This evidence was given by Nicholas Selvaggi, deputy assistant attorney-general of New York, who was in charge of an Empire State probe of the Decimo Club.

Twice, Selvaggi testified, Reading went to his office, each time expressing the opinion the probe would not proceed far because the club was all right.

The first time was late in last May. The second occasion was in June, Selvaggi could not recall exact dates.

Asked how Reading introduced

KLAN ON EVANS' ORDERS BURNED 7 ALIVE IN TAR, U. S. WITNESS TESTIFIES

Pittsburgh, April 10 (AP)—That he witnessed the burning alive of seven or eight men by Ku Klux Klansmen in Texas was the testimony given in Federal Court here this afternoon by Clarence W. Ludlow, who was called as a witness in the Klan injunction suits.

Ludlow, now a resident of Pittsburgh, said he was a former member of the Dallas, Tex., Klan Lodge No. 66, and that he was personally acquainted with Imperial Wizard Hiram Evans.

He described the burning of a white man at Terrell, Tex., saying the victim was "tried" by a Klan from Forest.

The prisoner, who was taken to an unused gas field, was then soaked with gasoline, and then set on fire by a Klansman who applied a match. He said between 300 and 400 hooded Klansmen were present at the time.

EVANS ORDERED BURNINGS

Ludlow said that at another time a man named "Smith," alleged to have failed to support his family, was tried before Evans, who ordered that he be dealt with severely. He said Evans directed the tarring and feathering of the man.

Asked by Klan counsel if this "was done by your local Klan," Ludlow re-

MINISTER ACCUSED IN OLIVER WILL CONTEST

Undue influence on the part of Rev. E. Victor Bigelow, D. D., of Andover, was alleged in the contest of the will of Miss Sarah E. C. Oliver of the Hotel Bellevue, which began in Suffolk County Probate Court today.

Under the will of Miss Oliver, executed on July 18, 1925, and believed to dispose of an estate of between $10,000 and $15,000, the Rev. Dr. Bigelow was made chief beneficiary. The contestants were Thomas E. Oliver, brother of the testatrix, a professor in the University of Illinois, and several relatives.

Dr. Bigelow admitted having written the following letter to Miss Oliver: "My dear little discarnate wail. Your brief notes, with the delicious bit of venison, I found at our front door this morning. Thanks for both. In regard to your request to give you up, I cannot listen to it for a moment. Have I shown signs of growing thin by my worries over you? Do I have a haggard look that

SHOOTING, KIDNAPING IN CHICAGO ELECTION

Chicago, April 10—At least one shooting, several kidnapings, dynamitings and ballot box stuffings were reported today in Chicago's most violent primary election.

The sun shone brightly as more than 1,000,000 voters went to the polls.

Titus Haffa, candidate for Republican committeeman on Mayor Thompson's ticket, was reported kidnaped before the polls opened. But he was found later, guarded by the Republican headquarters of his ward.

Aristotle M. Colins, candidate for national convention delegate from the eighth congressional district, was kidnaped by six men in an auto.

LOWELL ACCEPTS HUB SCHOOL SURVEY JOB

President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University today accepted Mayor Nichols' appointment as representative of the City of Boston on the board of survey which is to make a study of the Boston school system.

President Lowell was a member of the Boston school committee in 1895, 1897 and 1898, but was his appointment to criticism of the educational system in the public schools made before the convention of the National Educational Association at Mechanics Building, Feb. 27. At that time he said the cost of education was far too high, and that the taxpayers were getting little for their money.

Yesterday the school committee voted that a committee of seven be

RED SOX WIN OVER SENATORS IN OPENER

Washington, April 10—The Boston Red Sox opened the 1928 major league season in a most auspicious manner here, today, beating the Washington Senators before a gathering of 20,000 fans, which included President Calvin Coolidge.

Score—Red Sox 7, Senators 5.

A three-run rally in the seventh broke a 4 to 4 tie and put the game on ice for the Bostonians.

Except in the first frame when they scored three runs on one hit off Danny MacFayden, the Senators could do little with the bespectacled Somerville youth.

MONJAR, STAR DECIMO CLUB WITNESS, SOON TO FACE READING

PROBERS TO TRACE CHECK

himself on the first occasion, Selvaggi replied: "As Mr. Reading, the attorney-general of Massachusetts."

Regarding the call which Reading made upon him in May, Selvaggi said:

"I told him that I was following the investigation of the Decimo Club. He informed me that he had the matter up for investigation in Massachusetts and that he had given the matter a thorough investigation and that as far as he could see there was no wrong-doing. . . . He said that he was satisfied that they were all right. He said he could not see how we could go ahead."

READING'S SECOND VISIT.

Of the second visit, in June Selvaggi said:

"It was practically the same as the first. He told me that he thought we wouldn't get very far with our investigation, although it looked to me as though there was something "fishy" about the club all the way through. I thought it was a good business for the members in it, bookeeping a lot of money. I felt that certain members were actually looting the organization. I had made up my mind to stop this operation."

Both conferences were in the department of fraud of the New York attorney-general's office, he said.

"Did Mr. Reading ever reveal to you that he was acting in any other capacity than that of Attorney-General of Massachusetts?"

"I did not know of any other capacity?" Selvaggi answered.

Asked if during the visits Reading seemed concerned about the investigation, he replied: "That I cannot tell you."

SAYS PRIDE TOLD OF CRIME

A feature of the day's session was the statement by James R. Wood, Boston detective, that at the Coolidge conference in his office already testified to by Edwin L. Pride, the accountant, Pride did mention criminal acts in the L. A. W. and said that Louis A. Wolfe had "gotten away" with $50,000.

In his office at the time on Nov. 16 or 17, Wood said, were Allen Grout, of Vermont, Joseph Lincoln and William Nash and a County Attorney Lancaster, of Androscoggin County, Maine.

Q.—What subject was under discussion? A.—L. A. W.

Q.—Was anything said by Mr. Pride at that conference with relation to criminal acts? A.—There was.

Q.—What did he say? A.—Mr. Pride was informed that I wanted information as to the L. A. W. and Pride mentioned that he had found enough already to send Mr. Wolfe to jail. He mentioned $50,000 that Wolfe had got away with. Those were his very words to me. Then he said that he wanted to talk with Atty. Gen. Reading before saying any more. He said he wanted Mr. Reading's approval to give certain information.

TELLS ABOUT $50,000.

He called up somebody and I presume it was the attorney general. He told the person he was talking to that he was at my office and that he wanted his approval to give me certain information about the L. A. W. and apparently the person on the other end of the line agreed that he should do so because he said, "All right, I'll give Mr. Wood the information." While he talked on the telephone, I heard him say, "I am getting along very well, I have already discovered there is $50,000 wrong."

State House representatives of Boston newspapers were called during the afternoon session. The first was Julius V. Clerk of the Boston News Bureau, who said that on June 9, he, with Capt. Bernard J. Doherty of the Boston Evening American and Louis Mathieu of the State House News Service, went to Reading and queried him regarding the Decimo Club.

At that time, Clark said, the attorney general declined to make public the result of his investigation, but upon being pressed told newspapermen to return in half an hour. Clark said when he went back Reading gave him a slip of paper on which was written:

"Some time ago this office investigated the activities of the Decimo Club within this jurisdiction and found no evidence of any violation of our laws."

Capt. Doherty, the next witness, said on May 14 he went to Reading in company with Mathieu and asked him about the Decimo matter and Reading replied he knew nothing about it. The attorney-general was shown a newspaper article about a Pittsburgh investigation of the club.

"I think he said he would have an inspector look into it," Doherty testified.

BARRETT QUIZZED AGAIN.

At the start of the day's session Herbert L. Barrett, Norwood, the go-between in Reading's $25,000 cash transaction with the Decimo Club, was questioned at length by members of the committee who sought to bring out the capacity in which Barrett accompanied the attorney-general to New York on the occasion the money was paid.

They finally drew from him the admission that "it might be true" that the $200 he received from Reading was in payment of services to Reading and not to Decimo Club.

Many of the queries addressed to Barrett pertained to his receipt by mail of three checks from the Decimo Club. These checks were made out to him and he deposited them, but for Reading made out his personal check for the total of the two largest.

How he knew these checks were for Reading and why if they were for Reading they should have been addressed to him, was the gist of the questioning.

Barrett finally produced a letter which he said accompanied the checks to him and in the letter read the sentence "These checks are for your invoices for like amounts."

"You didn't send any invoices?" "No," he answered.

Q.—You didn't send any bill? A.—No.

Q.—Why didn't you indorse those checks and send them on to Reading? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Why were they sent to you? A.—I don't know. I only know that I received the checks.

Q.—Haven't you any idea as to why those checks should come into your hands? A.—No.

Q.—No error was made when the checks were sent to you, was there? A.—There must have been.

Q.—Did you ever notice to the company that they sent the checks to you by mistake? A.—No.

Q.—Why didn't you? A.—Because Reading said they were for him.

Q.—Did you do anything about filling papers for the Drew Tailoring of Massachusetts? (A subsidiary of Decimo Club) A.—No. I don't know anything about it.

Q.—Do you know if they ever were filed? A.—No.

Hugh B. Monjar, former president of the Decimo organization and the man who revealed Reading's connection with the club, will be a witness tomorrow or Thursday, Chairman James announced at the opening of today's session. He is ready to testify when needed, James declared.

Barrett took the stand.

Q. (By Rep. Crocker)—When was your first contact with the Decimo Club? A.—June 7, 1927, in New York.

Q.—Was that the same day the check for $25,000 was handed to you? A.—No, the check was handed to me the following day.

"IS THIS FOR ME?"

Q.—You have testified that when the check was handed to you, you said: "Is this for me?" What made you say that? A.—I didn't think it was for me, but it was handed to me and I asked, "Is this for me?"

Q.—There was no talk the previous day that it would be made payable to you was there? A.—No.

Q.—What did you understand the $25,000 was paid to Mr. Reading for? A.—I understood it was paid to him to reorganize the Decimo Club so that it would be above criticism in any state.

Q.—Do you know whether a reorganization of the Decimo Club has been effected by Mr. Reading? A.—I understood it was. I looked over some forms that Mr. Reading had prepared one evening and I talked with him about the reorganization of the club.

Q.—Who were those two checks subsequently sent to you by the Decimo Club and made payable to you? A.—I haven't the least idea. I thought the $50 check was for me and I called up Mr. Reading and asked him if that were not so and should I not keep it and he said yes. The other two checks were to cover some expenses by him, so I put them in my bank and drew a check to him, covering their total.

READING WANTED SOME CASH.

Q.—You were persuaded to cash that check for $25,000 at the Chase National Bank, weren't you? A.—That's what I did, yes.

Q.—Is there any reason why the check that Mr. Reading received could not have been deposited in the first bank instead of the second bank? A.—I think he said he wanted to take some cash to may some hotel bill.

Barrett said his first conference with Reading was on May 31 and up to that time he had no knowledge of the Decimo Club.

Questioned regarding his connection with the club, he was asked: "You don't think that Mr. Reading was calling you in as senior counsel?" "Oh, no," he replied. "It was my impression I was to work with him."

Q.—You went to New York as his assistant, didn't you? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Well, he did not go as your assistant? A.—No.

Q.—Did Mr. Reading tell you that the Decimo Club was banned in other states. A.—No.

Q.—You testified that he investi-

FALL 'BAGMAN' SAYS HE GAVE HIM BONDS

was crowned with success this afternoon.

In the tiny courtroom of Justice Jennings Bailey, where Sinclair is standing trial for criminal conspiracy to defraud the government of oil land, Mahlon T. Everhart, son-in-law of Fall, finally admitted he personally had received the bonds from the oil man in May, 1922, and had taken them West to Fall.

Twice before he had refused to testify, pleading fear of self-incrimination. A recent act of Congress changing the running time of the statute of limitations, however, removed that barrier to his testimony.

PAID FOR RANCH.

Everhart testified, however, that $233,000 in bonds was in payment for a third interest in Fall's 700,000-acre ranch at Three Rivers, N. M. The Teapot Dome oil lease, so far as he knew, had no connection with the transaction.

He was a nervous witness. He twitched uncomfortably in the witness chair as he answered.

Owen J. Roberts, government special oil prosecutor, addressed the newly-sworn jurors and told them what he hoped to prove against the wealthy oil man. He outlined the whole transaction whereby Sinclair obtained a lease on the immensely valuable Teapot Dome oil reserve from former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and charged that a $233,000 bribe motivated the deal.

"The government expects to prove to you that this was no ordinary business transaction, but one clothed in the greatest secrecy," the prosecutor told the jury. "We will show you that Sinclair delivered to Fall $258,000 in Liberty bonds and $35,000 in cash under highly suspicious circumstances.

"And there was no receipt, not even the scratch of a pen."

Daniel Thew Wright of Sinclair counsel immediately presented the preliminary defense argument.

NAMES HARDING, DENBY

The great naval oil reserves, Wright told this jury, were in grave danger of drainage from wells drilled just across the border lines at the time Fall leased them. Thus, he argued, not only was it a sound business proposition, but it gave revenue and oil to the public from a portion of the public domain that had long been unworked.

Wright said Fall was only one of the men interested in the policy of saving the oil. He named, among others, the late President Harding and Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby.

The defense attorney contended that in May, 1921, Denby and Fall were on their way to a Cabinet meeting. Denby, he said, complained to Fall that he had no personnel or equipment in the Navy Department to handle the oil reserves.

"I'm going to ask the President," Wright quoted Denby as telling Fall, "to turn the reserves over to your department in Interior."

Then followed the executive order by President Harding placing the reserves under the Interior Department.

Admiral J. K. Robison, then on the Navy General Board, played an important part in the lease, Wright said. For national defense purposes, he said, the Navy needed large quantities of fuel oil and Robison urged leasing Teapot Dome under an arrangement whereby the crude oil would be traded for fuel oil in storage.

CITES WAR "SCARE."

"This plan was taken to Secretary Denby," Wright declared, "and on the bottom of the letter Denby wrote, in his own hand, 'Do this. E. D.'

"And at that very time," declared Wright, "the navy people were in fear of attack at any time."

He was referring to the "Japanese war scare" of 1921, which was used so effectively when Fall and E. L. Doheny stood trial for a similar conspiracy.

Wright then got around to the $233,000 transaction. He painted a vivid picture of the beauties and possibilities of Fall's Tres Ritos ranch at Three Rivers, N. M., which Sinclair visited in 1921. Sinclair, he said, gave Fall the money for a third interest in the ranch.

ALL G. A. R. MEN IN STATE LIFE DELEGATES

Every living member of the Massachusetts G. A. R. is a delegate to the state convention for life, in accordance with an unanimous resolution adopted today at the 62nd annual state encampment in historic Faneuil Hall.

With the thinning ranks dropped to 1509 from 25,000 in the last quarter century, the 284 delegates present saw the need for the action and passed it without a dissenting voice. The measure was drawn on the heels of permission from national headquarters, leaving the matter of delegates to the state departments.

The encampment was opened by Commander Henry A. Monk who, speaking to a well-filled hall, thanked his comrades for their cooperation during his term.

He urged that the Grand Army soon admit the Daughters of Veterans to their meetings, as they do now the Sons of Veterans.

LAUDS "YOUNGSTERS."

He lauded the work of the younger organizations, citing the Spanish War Veterans, the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"Let us associate with them more and more, that we may profit by their strength and they by our experience," he said.

On the platform with Commander Monk was Dr. Lewis Pilcher of New York, past national commander, and his aide, George A. Hosley, national chief of staff. Dr. Pilcher represented National Commander Eldridge L. Hawk of Sacramento, Cal., and will be the guest of the encampment.

In contrast to the hot elections of other years, today's votes elected Edwin J. Foster of Worcester, commander without opposition. James H. Webb of Boston was chosen senior vice-commander and Alvin C. Howes, junior vice-commander unopposed.

OLDEST, YOUNGEST "SHAKE"

In the sprinkling of acquaintance renewals prior to the meeting, the oldest and youngest in the department clasped hands again this year. They were Charles S. Wilber, 93, of the Soldiers' Home, Chelsea, and Charles Smith, 74, of Newburyport, who claims to be the youngest G. A. R. veteran in the country, having enlisted at the age of ten years and four months. Wilber explained that he was 28 and saw five months in the famous Libby prison.

Late today, Dr. Pilcher is to be tendered a reception by 500 comrades at the Soldiers' Home, Chelsea, as one of the features of the encampment.

'HE JILTED ME!' SHE CRIES IN COURT SCENE

Threats in letters to slash the man she loved, set the dogs on him and make trouble as long as she lives were admitted today in municipal court by Miss Laura A. Smith, 31, of Clarendon st., Back Bay, before she was sentenced to the House of Correction for two months on charges of threatening bodily harm.

Unrequited love and the fury of a woman scorned were responsible for the letters, according to Herbert W. Simmons, No. Market st., salesman, who haled Miss Smith into court.

The letters were admitted under questioning by Judge Dowd, though in testimony following the woman said she loved him and made the threats to frighten Simmons.

Simmons told Judge Dowd he had known Miss Smith four years, met her when she was a stenographer at his place of business and "entertained her a little at times."

"We were engaged," the woman snapped back. "He jilted me. He's the only man I ever loved."

"Did you write the letter saying you would 'slash his devilish face?'" she was asked. "Yes, I did," she replied, and at this point admitted authorship of all letters exhibited.

A—Did you mean it? Q—No! I love him, will always love him and I love him now."

Judge Dowd read the letters and said the girl admitted her own guilt. He cited the letters as "very violent" and imposed sentence. On her appeal he set bail at $500

He's Ready for a Tune in 'Follies' Girl's Suit

New York, April 10 (INS)—"I'm ready to face the music if this matter comes to trial."

This was the statement of John K. Olyphant, banker and grandson of the noted railroad builder, Robt. Olyphant, as he hastened defense preparations today against the suit of Sally Frances Richards, a former "Follies" girl, demanding life support.

Miss Richards figures, according to Carlisle's table of mortality, that she will live $126,384 worth. Therefore she is asking that amount in Supreme Court, alleging that the banker promised her $5000 annually for life when she released him from a promise to wed so that he might marry a rich society girl.

New and startling revelations of the sinister influences of the order and how it moved secretly to ruin the reputations of men whom it feared are contained today in the deposition of David C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the order, who is serving a life sentence in Indiana state prison for murder of a girl. The Boston Evening American is presenting the deposition in serial form. The testimony was given in a suit in U. S. court seeking to oust the Klan from Pennsylvania. (See Story on Page 1).

May Trace Gallivan's Death to Impure Air

Washington, April 10 (AP)—Possibility of the ventilation of the House and Senate chambers having direct effect upon the mortality among members of Congress was discussed at hearings on the annual legislative supply bill reported to the House today.

While no specific reference was made to the recent deaths of four members—Senators Willis, Ohio; Jones, New Mexico, and Ferris, Michigan, and Representative Gallivan, Massachusetts—the committee devoted considerable time to the question of the purity of the air

Representative Taylor, Colorado, Democrat, submitted a table of statistics compiled by William Tyler Page, clerk of the House, which, he said, showed that "during the last 35 years 207 Representatives and 83 Senators have died in office."

MEMORIAL TO SONS WHO DIED IN WORLD WAR

Minneapolis, Minn., April 10 (AP)—Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, famous singer, announced last night she had given her estate at Grossmont, 14 miles from San Diego, Cal., to "her boys"—disabled war veterans of the World War.

"Mother Schumann," as "her boys" called her, was the guest of honor of local disabled veterans at a "ham and cabbage dinner," her favorite "dish," she said.

The noted singer announced that she had deeded the $230,000 estate to Mayor George E. Leach of Minneapolis, to be administered as a haven for sick and disabled veterans and their families.

She gave the home, she said, to show her love for the "boys," who played "taps" for her two sons who lost their lives in the World War, one fighting for Germany and the other for America.

"You have honored me by calling me 'mother,'" she said. "You honored me by honoring my boy who died on a submarine. He may have killed some American boys with his submarine, but he could not help that. It was war, you know.

"But you honored him. That is why I give you Grossmont. I love you; that is why I do this. I will love you until the Great Commander calls me."

Grossmont is near the sea. There is a 32-room house and there are orange and lemon groves and a vineyard.

"Mother Schumann" wept as "her boys" led her from the room after the dinner.

URGES STATE TO BUY REVERE LINE FOR 'L'

Purchase by the State and lease to the Boston Elevated of the Chelsea and Revere branch of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway was urged at a hearing today before the House ways and means committee by Henry I. Harriman, chairman of the Metropolitan Planning division.

On the basis of estimates made in 1924, Harriman said the "L" could lease the property for 45 to 50 years at an annual rental of 4½ to 5 per cent on $2,000,000 of the road's $3,600,000 valuation. The charge for the difference of $1,600,000 would be borne by Chelsea and Revere.

In this way, he pointed out, residents of the two cities could ride to all parts of the "L" system for a single fare. Now they must pay two fares beyond Scollay sq.

Chelsea and Revere delegations of both branches favor the bill.

Chairman Henry L. Shattuck held there should be some form of referendum in the two cities so they might decide whether they wished to accept the burden after they discovered the purchase price.

TRY TO IDENTIFY HAT IN SLAYING OF GIRL

...tate detectives and other investigators of the murder of Marguerite Stewart, for whose slaying Frederick Hinman Knowlton, Framingham business man, is held, are anxiously awaiting developments in two important features of the case today.

First a hat, found on a Concord roadside by a boy who lives nearby, will be taken to the Beverly school for Deaf Mutes, where Marguerite was employed, to see if it is identified as the pompadour hat she left she wore when she left the school for the last time on Thursday, March 29.

The investigators await developments on the hat, festive with mixed feelings. The rain and weather have so discolored the hat that none but those who had seen it often can hope to identify it.

If it is found to be the hat the Stewart girl wore when she left the school, the investigators lose one of the clues they had hoped most from. For the place where the hat was found tells them nothing, though they had hoped that it might mark the spot where the actual slaying took place.

It was found on a Concord roadside some two miles from the spot where the girl's body was discovered.

The hat might have been thrown from an automobile, and no marks of struggle are apparent at the place where it was picked up.

Knowlton will be arraigned in Middlesex Superior Court tomorrow, the scheduled arraignment for yesterday having been postponed.

HUB WIFE TELLS HOW SHE SLEW HUSBAND

Through tears, inspired by the sight of a paring knife exhibited as the weapon that killed her husband, Mrs. Florizell Dopwell, frail 18-year-old wife, in Suffolk Court today told her story of the events leading to her husband's death in the kitchen of their two-room apartment in Clarendon pk., South End, January 26.

Mrs. Dopwell is charged with manslaughter for the death that ended three months of married life.

"I came home at 10:15 that night and got into a kimona," she said, in response to direct questioning at the hands of John McCormack, her attorney.

"He came in raving and I pleaded with him to stop.

"Where have you been? Where have you been?" That was all I could get out of him and he followed it by striking me with his open hand.

TRIED TO SCARE HIM.

"I rushed into the bedroom and he followed still raving. I ran to the kitchen and put a table between us. It was then I picked up the knife to scare him.

"He said he'd kill me and I believed him. With that he grabbed my wrist and we fell to the floor. The point must have been toward him, but I didn't know it.

"I felt his body sag and I rushed again into the bedroom. It was then I saw blood on the point of the knife, unlocked the door that I locked when I ran in and rushed to the kitchen. I pleaded with him not to die and then the police came.

"I refused to answer their questions, it is true, until they did something to help my husband."

Taken under cross-examination by Asst. Dist. Atty. William I. Schell, the young wife was quizzed on a previous home battle in which a knife was said to have figured.

TELLS OF CHRISTMAS ROW.

Q.—Do you remember an argument just before Christmas? A.—Yes.

Q.—Didn't you use a knife then?

A.—No. It was just a disagreement. He was beating me, but I never struck him.

The line of questioning was brought about through yesterday's testimony of the couple's landlady that she interrupted a similar fight in December.

During the cross-examination she was shown the paring knife and burst into tears. Court was halted until she recovered her composure.

She denied that a letter to her husband from his former sweetheart two months after their wedding caused any of their troubles.

After re-direct examination the young wife was excused and she took a seat near the witness stand, her body shaking with sobs.

BIG RAINSTORM DUE TO STRIKE HUB TONIGHT

Sweeping northward up the east coast, a rain storm of marked intensity threatens Boston tonight and part of tomorrow, according to the weather man today.

Starting in northern Florida, the downpour precipitated nearly four and one-half inches before moving north. Washington and Atlantic City were in the storm center today with a mixture of rain, sleet and snow at the capital.

The same precipitation two weeks ago would have been a lively blizzard with the lower temperatures that prevailed then.

While the official Washington forecast that control the local forecast was late today, unofficial predictions were made by local authorities that the storm would arrive here late tonight and continue into tomorrow morning.

With a clearing by noon temperatures will rise and fair weather will prevail, according to the prediction.

CHICAGO VOTE IS MARKED BY KIDNAPINGS

place and was shot in the right arm. Jack Edmundsen and "Tummy" Cornelius, polling place workers, were kidnaped.

Hoodlums entered a West Side polling place, wrecked ballot boxes and buried the election judge and his workers from the room, according to one police report.

R. H. Taylor, a Deneen precinct committeeman, was kidnaped by several men who forced him into their automobile as he was delivering ballots, beat him severely, then shoved him out into the street.

John Berdon, Thompson-Crowe candidate for state representative, was arrested on complaint of a Deneen watcher, who said he was beaten by Verdon, who had questioned his credentials.

The U. S. district attorney's office announced it had received more than 100 complaints of disorder by noon.

Emil J. Broz, watcher, said he had been thrown from two polling places by gangsters. He was given police protection.

Throughout the State the voting was going on. Republicans and Democrats nominating their slates for state offices, for Congress, for United States Senator and for minor offices.

But only Chicago felt it necessary to assign a large part of its police power to poll protection; to have scores of detective bureau squads cruising through precincts where trouble might brew, and to assign thousands of volunteer civilians deputized for the day by the election commission to protect against fraud.

For Governor Len Small today was a political Armageddon, for he stood before the Republicans of the State asking their endorsement of his seven years in office by renomination to a third term. In Chicago his lot was cast with the Thompson faction led by Mayor Thompson and State's Attorney Crowe.

Louis L. Emerson, secretary of State, was Governor Small's opponent. He headed the ticket of that Republican group led by United States Senator Charles S. Deneen, the bonds of whose home a fortnight ago tore the sides out of the Chicago political situation.

As in Governor Small's case, today was a critical day in the political career of State's Attorney Crowe. He has been attacked repeatedly by his Deneen opponent Judge John A. Swanson, for crime conditions in Chicago and Cook county. He is now finishing his second four-year term. Crowe's name became internationally familiar as the prosecutor in the Loeb-Leopold case.

USE DYNAMITE IN MAINE TO HALT FLOOD

Dynamite was used today at Fort Fairfield, Me., in an attempt to move the ice jam which, according to dispatches, had inundated section of the Maine town as that section's portion of New England's sufferings from the spring flood continued.

Nearly three feet of water surged in Main st. of Fort Fairfield, the jam having sent water over the banks of the Aroostook river, resulting in cancellation temporarily of all Canadian Pacific railroad service.

Meanwhile, from other parts of flood-threatened New England came encouraging word that the fronts of last night had stayed the inflow of waters into the already swollen rivers.

At Springfield the Connecticut River passed at the 13.5 stage today and it was reported that temporary dikes built in last fall during the disastrous floods were holding the water.

The 13-foot wall of water that swept down the Connecticut river valley, following breaking of the Gilman, N. H., dam, and that carried destruction in its path, had been reduced today to a comparative trickle and no further danger is anticipated in this section.

Here, now in New England to the north is for a gradual moderation of weather that will set off the snow and ice water gradually.

Foochow, Fukien Province, China, April 9 (AP)—Strong feeling against Japan has been aroused among the Chinese here as the result of an incident in which 36 to 40 Chinese were slain by Japanese naval fire.

A Japanese coast steamer was wrecked off Haitling Island as Chinese residents attempted to carry off the cargo. Three Japanese destroyers appeared and silenced the fear to heavy fire. Eight to 10 of the Chinese, called members of the crew of the steamer gave them permission to carry off the cargo.

Let British Women Rule —and Pay the Penalty

London, England, April 10 (AP)—The enfranchising of all women at the age of 21 has brought into existence "the fifty-fifty league" whose members want to do something to offset the placing of men voters in a minority in the United Kingdom.

The league stands for "the emancipation of men from feminist domination" and it has issued a manifesto headed "the sex war."

The leaguers contend that, as women will now be in a position to dictate the country's policy, they must be prepared to accept the logical consequences.

The manifesto therefore demands that immediately political power in the country is transferred from men to women:

1. Women shall be liable to military conscription on exactly the same terms and conditions as men are or may be liable thereto.

2. All sex privileges, concessions and immunities presently enjoyed by women shall be withdrawn.

3. All laws and practices which relieve women of the economic consequences of their acts, shall be annulled.

4. The marriage laws and all customs and usuages which arise therefrom shall be rectified.

60 HONORARY BEARERS AT DR. KELLY FUNERAL

Sixty honorary pallbearers took part today in the funeral of Dr. John H. Kelly of 182 Bowdoin st., Dorchester, in St. Peter's Church. A solemn high mass of requiem was sung by the Rev. Edward Kenney, formerly of St. Peters, but now of Franklin. The Rev. John A. Conigliaro was deacon and the Rev. John A. York subdeacon. Burial was in Mt. Calvary Cemetery. Active pallbearers were Drs. James P. O'Hare, Edward F. Tinnulin, John F. Kennessey, Joseph Stanton and Edward J. Kendig, and John L. Black, John V. Pound and Daniel A. Arundel.

FREDERICK MAGUIRE KILLS SELF IN SOUTH END HOUSE

Frederick Maguire, 45, walked into a Middlesex st. lodging house today where he roomed, told the landlady, Nina Fee, "I'm going to end it all," and swallowed a white powder which he took from his pocket. At the City Hospital he was pronounced dead. William A. McKenney of 52 Ruseell st., Medford was found unconscious at Pearl and Purchase sts., and died soon after.

DRAMA DYING, SAYS BRADY IN TAX PLEA

Washington, April 10 (INS)—The legitimate drama is disappearing from the American stage, William A. Brady, famous producer and theater owner, declared today in pleading before the Senate finance committee for a repeal of all amusement taxes.

Brady said the elimination of taxes on small admissions had given the movie industry $65,000,000 relief in two years, while the legitimate theater received no relief. He declared that while 309 theaters staged dramatic shows in 1918, but 200 theaters were open today in the "spoken art."

"The theatres are in a bad way," said Brady. "The movies are far better off. They get their whole show in a can and most employ an operator. We can't compete with them and yet their taxes are repealed and we still must pay for the war."

Brady pointed out that his taxes on $50,000 pearl necklaces, $10,000 fur coats, dirks, brass knuckles, sword canes and daggers had been repealed.

"Why take the tax off necklaces and brass knuckles and yet tax art?" the producer demanded. "The legitimate theatre is subsidized in every other country and yet here, in the most prosperous nation, we tax it. The drama is dying and is already dead in 70 per cent of the states."

SHAW'S DRIVER IS FINED FOR THEFT

A controversy over a chauffeur's livery, between Robert Gould Shaw, 2d, wealthy Newton resident, and Frank W. Morrill of Geneva ave., Dorchester, culminated today in Newton court. Morrill was found guilty of the larceny of the livery and was fined $50 by Judge William F. Bacon. He appealed.

Shaw testified he employed Morrill from October to February, buying him a livery and overcoat. He said when Morrill got through he told she man to return the livery, and finally Morrill's wife sent back part of the livery but not the overcoat. Morrill, through his attorney, said he thought he was presented with the livery.

WEST-BOUND LINERS WARNED OF ICEBERGS

Warnings of icebergs in the westbound steamship lanes were broadcast today by the U. S. Hydrographic Bureau for the North Atlantic at the Customs House. Capt. J. A. Kittinger, U. S. N., in charge here, received the warnings from the Coast Guard cutter Modoc, now on ice patrol. The big bergs will endanger passenger ships returning from Europe until they float south out of the lanes or melt in warmer waters, the broadcast says.

SENATOR GILLETT ILL WITH COLD AT CAPITAL

Washington, April 10 (AP)—Further consideration by the Senate of the World Court resolution will be delayed for a day or two because of the illness of Senator Gillett of Massachusetts, author of the resolution. The Revere police were today asked to search for Millie Amenelli, 17, of North Shore road, that city, whose parents said she has been missing from home since Saturday. They told the police they thought she had run away to get married. The missing girl is described as 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighing 105 pounds. She wore a pink dress, red coat, blue hat and black shoes. She has been employed in Boston.

JUGOSLAVS SEEK SOVIET AID AGAINST MUSSOLINI

Spalato, Dalmatia, Jugoslavia, April 10 (AP)—Russia and Bulgaria have been called upon to join with Jugoslavia in combatting Italian plans for expansion.

Stephan Raditch, president of the Croatian Peasants' party, speaking at a mass meeting said: "Mussolini is preparing for war. He wishes to wrest Dalmatia from Jugoslavia, but this province constitutes our sea coast and our life blood. We must retain it at all costs."

NEW INDICTMENT SOUGHT AGAINST MRS. KNAPP

Albany, N. Y., April 10 (INS)—Eighteen witnesses, seven of whom have never before publicly figured in the case, today were called before the special grand jury in an effort to get two additional indictments against Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state. Six indictments have been returned against her for alleged juggling of the $1,200,000 1925 census fund.

BLEASE FLAYS 'HOOVER AND MONOCLE'

Washington, April 10 (INS)—Herbert Hoover, with his monocle, will never break into the solid South," Senator Cole Blease (D.) of South Carolina declared in the Senate today in an attack on Hoover's candidacy. Blease further charged President Coolidge and Postmaster-General Harry S. New with violating the law by naming a Savannah, Ga., man as acting postmaste in Anderson, S. C.

Blease declared Joseph W. Talbert, Republican national committeeman from South Carolina, was collecting money from postmasters in his State to be used as a Republican campaign fund.

Blease criticised Hoover particularly "for championing negroes."

President Angell of Yale Declares for Hoover

New Haven, Ct., April 10 (INS)—Dr. James Rowland Angell, president of Yale University, today joined the Hoover-for-President forces in Connecticut. He issued a statement in which he said:

"The opportunity to elect Herbert Hoover President of the United States must appeal strongly to every citizen who would see in that high office men of broad vision, long training in public affairs, and a practical idealism beyond the touch of sordid political influences."

Smith, Hoover Make Gains in Presidency Races

Washington, April 10 (AP)—Presidential politics took another big stride today with clarification of additional convention delegate leanings in 10 states and two insular possessions, in which Hoover and Smith figures and the bringing up to the front line of battle of more oral artillery for Walsh.

By nightfall three more states—Illinois, Nebraska and Oklahoma—were to know how they stood, at least partially, for nominees at Kansas City and Houston.

Hoover, now ahead in the race for the Republican nomination, today could lay claim to perhaps 17 more convention delegates.

Smith, leading in the Democratic bid for delegates, apparently was the only other of the dozen or more presidential aspirants to pick up support. The Utah state convention selected 16 Houston delegates, each with a half vote, without expressing a choice, although backers of the New York Governor claimed all eight votes would be for their candidate.

"Bossy" Gillis Loses Wallet, $500, But It's Mailed Back

Chicopee, April 10 (AP)—When Mayor Andrew (''Bossy'') Gillis of Newburyport was on his way home Saturday night from a barnstorming trip in the course of which he addressed the American Legion post here, he discovered he had lost his wallet containing a draft on a Boston bank for $500 besides his license and registration.

He returned to this city, but search for the wallet was without result. Today Capt. F. L. Wright of the police department was informed by Robert Adair of this city that he had picked up the wallet on the outskirts of the city and had mailed it to Mayor Gillis.

Farm Leaders in New Attack Against Hoover

Washington, April 10 (AP)—Herbert Hoover and his attitude toward agriculture was the target today for another attack by a group of farm leaders who contended a misleading effort was being made to represent the commerce secretary as a friend of the farmer. The signers were: Charles S. Weller, chairman South Dakota Agricultural Committee; J. H. Kimble, legislative agent, Farmers National Congress; Robert M. Crowder, president, South Dakota Farm Bureau; C. E. Huff, president, Kansas Farmers' Union; Ralph Snyder, president, Kansas Farm Bureau, and Mrs. W. Doak, vice-chairman, Federated Farm Women of America.

BORAH FOR PRESIDENT!" IDAHO G. O. P. SLOGAN

Pocatello, Idaho, April 10 (AP)—A movement to endorse Senator William E. Borah as the choice of his home state for president, was under way among the 360 odd delegates assembled for the Idaho Republican convention here today. Idaho will send 11 delegates to the National Convention at Kansas City.

SEEK 'ICEBOX' THUGS ON CLUE IN WORCESTER

Webster, April 10 (AP)—The "Ice box" bandits, who shot and killed State Patrolman Irving H. Nelson in Pomfret, Ct., Friday night, were driven in a taxi to Worcester from Webster about 15 minutes after they abandoned the death auto in Dudley, it was learned today. With this information on hand, police centered their search in Worcester where the bandit pair are believed hiding in one or their haunts.

The latest information in the case was furnished by Frank Spinney, also known as Spiwakowski, taxi driver, who said his cab was used by the men. First they went to their abandoned automobile in Dudley and then were driven to Worcester where he left them on South bridge st. near Madison st., he said.

The young men hailed Spinney and asked for a ride. They told him to keep going and directed him to West Main st. to a spot almost opposite where the bandit automobile later was found parked. Spinney said the tallest of the two got out of the automobile while the shorter remained on the running board.

After apparently satisfying themselves that the automobile remained undiscovered, they were driven back to Webster.

Two stores suffered joint damage of $3000 today through fire in a Mattapan block. The fire started in the delicatessen shop of Max Siegel at 1182A Blue Hill ave. and ate its way into the adjoining haberdashery shop of Morris Silverstein.

BEGS HIS PAL TO PAY DEBTS; TRIES SUICIDE

Lying unconscious in his room with a gas tube in his mouth, Henry LeBlanc, 52, of 399 Newbury st., Back Bay, was found by William Jones, a room-mate, early today. LaBlanc was carried to City Hospital suffering from gas poisoning.

Patrolman Cohen and Corbett of station 16 used the prone method of resuscitation en route to the hospital, but LeBlanc failed to revive and his name was placed on the danger list.

A note addressed to his room-mate read: "Dear Bill: I am about to end it all. I hope to see you soon and hope it will be in Heaven. Please pay all my debts. Goodbye, Bill."

HOME BURNS AS MAN TAKES HIS CHILDREN TO SCHOOL

Patsey Dingone, a widower, took his two children to school today, and on his return found the cottage he occupied at 7 George st., Revere, in flames. William Quarantelli of 5 George st., discovered the blaze and notified the fire department, but by the time the firemen arrived the house was a total loss and they confined their efforts to preventing the spreading of the flames. The fire is believed to have started in the kitchen. The loss is estimated at $2000. Dominic Quarantelli of Revere is the owner.

ST. PAUL'S THRONGED TO RAFTERS FOR WINTHROP-AYER NUPTIALS

Betty Alden Notes Many of Social Importance in the Gathering

EVEN SO VAST AN ECCLESIASTICAL EDIFICE AS THE Cathedral Church of Saint Paul was taxed to its farthest balcony corner by the consequential company that came yesterday to see Miss Theodora Ayer and Robert Winthrop wedded. Austere Saint Paul's was the downtown mecca for all the F. F. B.'s and their shining motors. Even Tremont st.'s high noon swirl of traffic seemed to sense the importance of the nuptial occasion, and so eddied into the byways to leave the historic pile the center of calm in the noonday's vortex, as the solemn ceremonial went on.

CUSTOMARY WEDDING ELABORATENESS OF FLORAL DISPLAY was, within the church, reduced to the simplest note. Vast as it is and designedly unadorned in the way of church magnificence, Saint Paul's and its altar demand a floral treatment unpretentious and in keeping. About the altar where the vested choir chanted, Australian farms lifted delicate pale green fronds, for lighted tapers to shine on. The enormous windows were banked with spring flowers—where the blue of hydrangea, the pink of rambler roses and the white of freesia did their valiant best to brighten the wedding scene.

PETITE AND GOLDEN HAIRED, THE BRIDE WAS AS PICTORIALLY perfect as ever bride could hope to be. A marvelously delicate piece of old rose point lace made a long, slender length of train veiled in tulle. There was a snug Hollandesque cap of rose point drawn over the bride's fluffy locks and a single wisp of tulle veiled her face as she walked altarward. A satin gown faintly suggesting the Moyenage lifted a bit in front to show tiny pomponed slippers and lengthened its rounded skirt into a semi-train. At the bride's throat gleamed a beautiful clasp of diamonds, and she wore a single necklet of pearls.

AFTER THE USHERS, MARCHING TWO AND TWO AND ALL garbed for wedding duties in perfect form, from boutonnieres to pale gray spats, came the maid of honor, Miss Edith Woodward, leading the bridal maidens. Immediately before the bride walked the matron of honor, Mrs. Gilbert Livingston Steward (Anne Ayer). Familiar faces in the bridal group were Miss Dorothy Winthrop, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Eleanor Mason, lifelong intimate of the bride; Miss Mabel Bayard Thayer, beauty of the Thayer clan; Miss Mary Louise Almy, a future bride herself; Miss Elizabeth Stewart, petite and yellow haired, and Miss Ellen Bohlen, attractive North Shore girl. Miss Marian Gray was an out-of-towner in the processional.

A SAFE PREDICTION IS THIS: THAT THE GREEN SATIN bridesmaids' frocks and airy maline hats worn yesterday will figure again this spring; certainly when June shall have rolled around and Class Day is here they will come out to glorify the girl and the scene. Demure maidens with downcast eyes and sober mien, attending the bride, were prettily frocked in pale green satin modishly designed with the shoulder caps and down on one side skirts. Enormous green hats harmonized perfectly. And all wore the same springlike tint, save for the maid and matron of honor. Their frocks and hats were satin of palest seashell pink.

MRS. CHARLES FANNING AYER'S costume for the festivities was in golden brown from shoes to toque, and, of course, very becoming to so attractive a mother of two attractive daughters. Mrs. Frederic Winthrop's costume was of velvet and lace, verging on the gray, and the small Winthrop daughter, little Miss Katherine, wore a pretty frock of blue with tan straw hat. Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer was the grande dame in gray velvet. Mrs. Thayer, as leader of the Haute Monde and head of the clan of Thayer, to which the bridegroom belongs, was a noted figure in the assemblage.

POST-LENTEN WASHINGTON is ever prepared to be off with the sackcloth and ashes and on with post-Easter joyousness, and as a starter attended the annual breakfast at Friendship, residence of the Edward Beale McLeans. It's a Washington tradition, the McLean Easter Sunday breakfast, and dates back a score or so of years when Mrs. John R. McLean, social matriarch, was its instigator. Presidents and First Ladies, Cabinet members and the Government officials, ambassadors and their ambassadresses have gathered about the McLean board these many years.

A TABLE FAIRLY GROANING with Southern dishes famous in song and story, all of the old-fashioned sort of toothsome delicacies, is prepared for the guests.

Q.—Did Mr. Reading refer to the Decimo Club investigation as the 'so-called investigations'? A.—No.

Q.—What was it that you did in New York except to indorse the check and get cash that you couldn't have done in Massachusetts? A.—I met Mr. Webster and discussed the affairs of the Decimo Club.

Q.—So you could have got all the information that you received by corresponding with the club? A.—Yes.

Q.—So the principle reason for your going to New York was to cash the check and turn the money over to Mr. Reading. A.—No.

Q.—Well, what was the principle reason? A.—To meet the officers of the club and to discuss business which I might do for it in Massachusetts.

Q.—You have said that the check you received was already made up when you got in New York except done in him.

Q.—And up to that time you had not met any member of the Decimo Club? A.—No. I had not.

Q.—When you received the check there was some talk about why it was made out to you, wasn't there? A.—Yes.

Q.—And Mr. Webster said that Mr. Reading didn't want his name used? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did Mr. Reading say to have the check made out in his name or did he say: "It is my check. Give it to me. There is nothing wrong with his transaction"? A.—No.

Questioned about cashing the check and paying the money to Reading, Barrett said Reading did not accompany him to the teller's window, but remained outside until Barrett turned the money over to him.

Q.—How long have you been practising? A.—About 16 years.

Q.—How much time elapsed between the time you got the check and cashed it? A.—Just a few minutes

Asked if he knew the location of the Decimo Club in New York, Barrett produced a letter and read the address.

Q.—Mr. Barrett, what is the Decimo Club? A.—That's a hard question for me to answer. I don't know what is in your mind. As I understand it, it is purely a social educational and working with its members with a nationally co-operative buying proposition on goods.

Q.—What kind of goods? A.—Any kind.

SOME EDUCATION SCHEME

He said the educational part of the club's program was "some schems" to promote education and the national co-operative buying proposition was to purchase things and help one another in business. He said that was all he knew of the club.

Q.—Not knowing any more than you do about the Decimo Club, weren't you suspicious that this transaction might have been unsavory when you went to New York? A.—I never had any suspicion that there was anything of unsavory connection with the transaction.

He said he could not remember having read the constitution and by-laws of the original club, but he did remember reading the revised constitution and bylaws prepared by Reading.

Q.—Did you ever study them? A.—No.

Barrett was questioned by James.

DIDN'T STUDY CHARTER

Q.—It is not quite clear to me what your employment was when you got back from New York. Was it your understanding that Mr. Reading was to reorganize the Decimo Club so that it would conform with the laws of the several states of the Union? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you make any study of the original charter of the organization? A.—No.

Q.—Then you couldn't advise either the Decimo Club officers or Mr. Reading as to the changes that should be made so as to conform with the laws of the several states without study the original charter, could you? A.—No.

Q.—Then you rendered practically no assistance to the attorney-general with relation to reorganization of the Decimo Club? A.—I didn't do any real work on the matter.

In response to further questioning by James, Barrett said Reading may have mentioned Missouri and Wisconsin as states in which the Decimo Club had been investigated, and he added that he thought Reading said the organization was under investigation in California.

PROBES IN SEVERAL STATES

Q.—In how many states did Mr. Reading say the club had been under investigation? A.—There was some talk about it being under investigation in several states and he said he wanted to put it in good condition so it could not be criticized. Mr. Reading told me that he had been informed by officers of the club the club had been given a clean bill of health in those states where it had been under investigation.

Maj. Hammond then took the witness for further redirect examination.

Q.—While you were enroute to New York by train with Mr. Reading, or in New York, did he say no complaint was pending in New York? A.—I think that on May 31 Mr. Reading said that he had written to the police commissioner of New York and had received a prompt reply in which the commissioner said that he had communicated with the attorney-general's office in New York and also with the Better Business Bureau there and that no complaints were pending.

Q.—Was anything said by Mr. Reading about any information he got from the attorney-general's office in New York? A.—No, not at that time. I think it was in July the attorney-general in New York started legal action against the Decimo Club there. Mr. Reading was in Pennsylvania on his vacation, at the time, I was in Martha's Vineyard. My office communicated with me by telephone and said the attorney-general's office in New York wanted to get in touch with Mr. Reading, so I telephoned Mr. Reading's office on July 16, learned where he was and wired him and he replied by wire, saying he would step off in New York.

Q.—Up to July 16, had you received any information from Mr. Reading as to any information he got from the attorney-general in New York? A.—No.

Q.—(By Representative Buckley)—You have testified that on June 3 Mr. Reading decided to become counsel for the Decimo Club. Is that correct? A.—Yes.

PAYMENT FOR "INVOICES."

Q.—And on June 6 you went to New York with him? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you get any letter of explanation with those two checks in October? A.—A letter came with the two checks in payment of invoices.

Q.—What were the invoices? A.—I didn't send any invoices.

Barrett then produced a letter which he said he received from the Decimo Club and which accompanied three checks for $50, $260.95 and a third for $142.96, all made payable to him. The letter was read by Barrett.

One sentence read: "These checks are for your invoices for like amounts."

Q.—(By Representative Buckley)—You didn't send any invoices? A.—No.

Q.—And you didn't send any bill? A.—No.

Rep. Rafter: Your sole purpose in going to New York was to be retained as counsel of the Decimo Club? A.—Yes, and the Agassiz and Drew Tailoring.

WORKING FOR READING

Q.—No formal agtainer was ever paid you by the Decimo Club? A.—No.

Q.—The $700 which was paid to you was fixed by Mr. Reading? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you had rendered no service to Decimo Club up to that time? A.—No.

Q.—You went to New York at Mr. Reading's suggestion? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you co-operated with him? A.—Yes.

Q.—And the $700 that was paid to you by Reading was for services to Reading and not to Decimo Club? Isn't that so? A.—I suppose that might be true. Yes.

Nicholas Selvaggi, Deputy assistant attorney-general of New York state, was called to the witness stand and interrogated by Major Hammond.

Selvaggi said he knew Reading, that he met him on one occasion in the latter part of last May and a second time in the middle of June.

SELVAGGI MET READING

Q.—Whether or not in May or June when you saw him, you were investigating the affairs of the Decimo Club? A.—I was.

Q.—Could you fix us the date? A.—Well, I can't recall the exact date; the matter was under my supervision during the month of May. I don't recall the exact date. I began the examination of witnesses on May 23.

Q.—What was it that called your attention to the activities of the Decimo club? A.—It was during February publication of stories in New York papers and the report of action being taken by other attorneys-general.

Q.—With regard to your first meeting with Mr. Reading, will you state to the committee conversation that you had with him? A.—Mr. Reading called to see me. I told him that I was following the investigation of the Decimo Club. He informed me he had the matter up for investigation in Massachusetts and he had given the matter a thorough investigation and as far as he could see there was no wrong-doing. He said it was sort of fraternal organization, he met the officers and they were actuated by proper motives. He said he was satisfied they were all right. He said he could not see how we could go ahead.

AS ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Q.—How did he introduce himself? A.—As Mr. Reading, the Attorney-General of Massachusetts.

Q.—At some later date, you said in June, you had another conversation with him. Could you give us the general tenor of that conversation. A.—It was practically the same as the first. He told me that he thought that was wouldn't get very far with our investigation, although it looked to me as though there was something "fishy" about the club all the way through. I felt that many members were footing the organization. I had made up my mind to stop this operation.

Q.—As the result of your investigation, did you file a bill? A.—I did. I applied to the court for a preliminary injunction. This was sought mostly on the testimony of Mr. Webster, which was given before me. The preliminary injunction was granted and the complained-of members were enjoined from any further operation.

IN FRAUD OFFICE

Q.—Were those two conferences that you held with Mr. Reading in your office? A.—Yes, they were held in the office of the department of fraud.

Q.—Did Mr Reading ever reveal to you that he was acting in any other capacity than that of Attorney-General of Massachusetts? A.—I did not know of any other capacity.

Atty Anderson for Reading questioned the witness and brought out that the injunction proceedings are still pending in the New York court.

Q (By Rep. Davison)—Did he seem concerned about the investigation when he called at your office? A.—That I cannot tell you.

Selvaggi was excused and Barrett was recalled.

An Old Puritan Tradition

When the Pilgrim fathers first set foot on New England soil they brought with them one of the long-cherished traditions of their native land—Cleanliness. For more than a third of a century Cleanliness has also been a tradition of Boston Ice service—beginning with the care in housing the ice it harvests or manufactures, and ending with its prompt delivery in wagons spic and span.

STAGE - SCREEN - MUSIC - DRAMA

'CHICAGO' NOW IN BOSTON AT PLYMOUTH

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

AND they have called this Chicago! The excuse is obvious, for Maurine Watkins, the young author, who are told, once traversed the police courts of Will Thompson's gusty habitat and in her first dramatic splurge has done her best to show up the ancestral village.

"Chicago" is a drama of crime and its consequence and, undoubtedly, must have been widened and shocked the calm seaboard audience which alternately giggled and applauded the performance at the Plymouth.

Francine Larrimore

But, also, there must have been thrills and perplexities to those on the upholstered side who trace the family name back to the Winthrops and Brewsters, skilling a gentleman and making profit by it has slight standing in a community of unlimited social solon.

Take it as you may—as stirring drama or as undiluted satire—"Chicago" hardly measured up to the native grasp of what constitutes good theater. It was easy to believe that "Chicago" exactly represented Miss Watkins' canvas of her own home town. As a matter of press dispatches one might believe the author had underestimated the sins of her community.

Already we are informed the local primaries in the midwest metropolis are today to be accompanied by machine guns, sawed-off pineapples (hand grenades) and whatever devices the earnest gentry of one faction or another may produce for the consternation of the opposition.

As the play, "Chicago," rolled through its natural sequences at the Plymouth it was plain that the author was sound in her bearings all that was needed to cover up disgusting manifestations were slick reporters, slicker lawyers, and a native department of justice more to be pitied than censured. Roxie Hart, as played by Francine Larrimore, bestowed talent enough upon a doubtful cause to make her an interesting if not an attractive character.

However you may gauge it, "Chicago" was a drama of passion and corruption—particularly as it is accepted in a region where organized law is assaulting and jest with the administrators.

As a drama of the hour "Chicago" should take the doubting gentlemen in hand and teach them that virtue is only worth while as dramatic concoots.

As a satire upon what an American critic spells should and should be, "Chicago" is entitled to a Pulitzer prize in a burlesque upon American jurisprudence it should capture the Congressional Medal of Honor.

There is a top-notch dance revue presented by an all-star cast, including Theodore Adolphus and Grace Eastman, the London Palace girls, a lively group, and Pat Kennedy.

Powers and Wallace in a tabloid musical comedy, "Georgia"; Frank Braidwood, cowboy baritone and recording bandsman; Melvin and Shannon in a comedy skit, and Clyde and Marion Nelson, jugglers, are the remaining acts.

JACQUELINE LOGAN Plays Mary Magdalene in Cecil De Mille's "The King Of Kings" at the Colonial.

TUNEFUL SHOW AT GAYETY

After successfully exploiting "Laffin' Thru" over the burlesque circuit last season, Phil Isaacson decided this season that the best thing he could do would be to bring it back again with the same people in new acts, new and numerous dances and new scenery and costumes.

Althea Conley

"Laffin' Thru" is the title given to the playety this week with "Peaches," the Monte Carlo band of 20 pieces; the "20 peerless dancing divinities" in the chorus; Joe Van, the principal comic; Althea Conley, the prima donna, and all the other favorites of last year.

'KING OF KINGS' OPENS IN HUB

Cecil B. De Mille's "The King of Kings" thrilled and edified a house-full of Bostonians last night at the Colonial Theater.

Nothing can be said of this pictured story of the earthly life of the Redeemer that was not said early last summer, upon the occasion of its first showing in Boston. Armies of players contributed to its making, among them H. B. Warner, the Schildkraut, Ernest Torrence, Robert Edeson, Montagu Love, Bryant Washburn and Jacqueline Logan.

One is impressed, seeing this most sublime picture for the second time, with the advantage the screen enjoys over the spoken drama, in that it may claim perpetually the "original cast" and the "original settings." Ten or twenty years from now—if unhappily they must wait that long—De Mille's "The King of Kings" will be among the priceless properties of church and Sunday school.

FINE ROMANCE AT ST. JAMES

"Aloma of the South Seas," a romance depicting the life of white men and pretty natives beneath a boiling tropical sun is the play of the week at the St. James.

The play, which was first presented in Boston a season or two ago, has lost none of its popularity.

Clara Joel assumes the stellar role of Aloma, a pretty native girl, who falls in love with a derelict white man who had befriended her.

How she shields him from enemies, chief of which was rum, while he plots and forms the basis of this romance.

As Nultane, a "jilted" native, Walter Gilbert gives one of his best performances.

Henry Wadsworth carries off his share of the honors as Bob Holden, the foremost rival of Nultane.

'PORGY' PROVES FINE HIT AT HOLLIS

A sort of seething encyclopedia of negro life in a Southern city is "Porgy," the Theater Guild production which roused an ultra-Bostonese audience at its Hollis Street Theater opening.

"Porgy" offers a three-ring circus whirl of dice, knife death, jazz, spirituals, perfervid love, voodoo, police grilling, and all the rest of the excitements which, one imagines, make life interesting and uncertain for our vivid Afro - American forebears.

Edward Fielding

Yet through all Edward Fielding this maze of varied life-facets there runs, quite consistently and quite engrossingly, the thread of a most amazing love story—the love story of the cripple, Porgy, beggar of pennies, dares via with Stevedore Crown, killer, fearless of God or man, for the heart of Bonnie Green Bess.

Eventually he kills his rival with his handkerchief developed handsome only to lose his Bess to a sickly-hued "dressed up" colored person, picturesquely known as "Sporting Life."

"Sporting Life"—plus the "happy dust" he carries in his pearl gray hat—wins what Crown lost—takes Bess with him to New York.

At the play's ending we have a most moving spectacle—Porgy helped into his little cart, goat-drawn, and trading for Gotham.

Frank Wilson is a sincere, winning Porgy; Jack Carter vigorous Crown; Evelyn and Evelyn Ellis acts artfully as Bess. It is a misfortune that even the least of the others cannot be named here. Among the "white folks" in the cast, Edward Fielding does an admirable piece of work as a lawyer-person. For all behave as no ensemble has behaved here since the Russian players showed how "extras" should act so as to make perfection of atmosphere.

NANCE O'NEIL HEADS FINE BILL AT KEITH'S

Nance O'Neil, world famous delineator of difficult roles, played a vest pocket version of "The Lily" at Keith's, and Jim McWilliams with his apparent ad lib gab played the piano and sang.

The noted actress and "the Pianotist" as McWilliams was billed, were the head liners of a great show. Brennan and Rogers are on the same plane with the featured numbers. They had a new edition of "Specialties" and they acted and sang and danced to the entertainment of the big audiences.

The Bike Slickers with Marie White, Jerry Derr and Jack Howe was an added attraction.

Coming Events

"The Silver Cord," with Laura Hope Crews, will move into the Wilbur next Monday.

"Here's How," a new musical comedy, will enter these regions next Monday, playing at the Shubert.

"The Merry Wives of Windsor," with Mrs. Fiske, Otis Skinner and Henrietta Crosman, will take the stage at the Hollis on Monday, April 23.

NOTED CROOK PLAY OFFERED AT SHUBERT

James Murray

In bringing back to life Bayard Veiller's famous crook play, "Within the Law," the All Star Cosmopolitan Artists have certainly developed a good old thriller that is still thrilling. As it is now offered at the Shubert, you will find plenty of admirable marks of art, but that it can still stand up on two good feet and "delivers" was proved by the spirit of last night's audience.

Berton Churchill

But for its four acts modern art affairs of this kind can still thoroughly thrill with only three, the high quality of some of its crooks and an old detail here and there, the play might easily have been written in 1928, instead of 1912.

But age or no age, the play as the Shubert is for those who go to the theater to be entertained. Let the pro-sssors argue the merits of the drama. To see Violet Heming as the smart girl who gives the law a sound drubbing may not be such a boon to those who quibble over Mary Turner's genuineness, as it is to the greater number who simply take thorough and agreeable sight of Violet Heming playing anything the latter may be over-whelmingly in the majority last evening.

And the rest of the brilliant cast; Robert Warwick as that magnificent thickhead, Joe Garson, forger and gunman but every inch a man; Fritzi Scheff that stimulating freshie, Argie Lynch; Charles Ray, that eccentric type of the movies; Al Gilden the younger; Berton Churchill, former star of "Alias, the Deacon," but now the great police inspector; May Robson in a mere bit, Ruth Chatterton, Robert Ames, Gilder, and Ruth Shepley, formerly of the local stock company at the Copley, are the weak sister of the Emporium.

The outstanding performance of last evening was Robert Warwick's. His remarkable figure, voice and vitality personifying that ancient institution. When he snarls at the police inspector you hold your breath for fear he is actually about to smash him down upon the stage. Such figures as Robert Warwick in the American theater are not numerous, more's the pity.

'CROWD' FILM SCORES AT STATE

By LEO GAFFNEY

The most original and striking motion picture to be seen thus far this year is "King Vidor's" "The Crowd," now on view at Loew's State. In New York it is being presented as a "legitimate" attraction, with prices scaled accordingly.

In Boston it must appear as merely a "program" picture, without any of the fuss accorded the super-super things. But, if you are interested in the progressive cinema, take a tip and don't allow the lack of ballyhoo to keep you from this new American masterpiece.

Technically "The Crowd" matches any of the highly touted German films, and it is far superior to most of them.

With a profusion of "camera angles" that beggar description, it presents its story, or rather its scenery, of the milling Crowd. The crowd at Coney, the crowd at work, the crowd at play, the crowd at home—always the Crowd, the great human herd that goes to movies, eats canned grub, listens to canned music, lives in "heated apartments," rides in the subway; the great Common People, with common joys, sorrows, sentiments and ambitions—in short, all of us. See "The Crowd" and see yourself, for you are bound to be there somewhere.

Vidor's principal characters are only two, a John and Mary combination that represents the average young married couple of presentday American life. The boy is but one of the legion of New York's "clerks" that swarm like so many ants to the days's drudgery. Lucky for him that he married a "nice girl," one who would first put his dinner in the oven and darn all his socks before quitting him on the occasion of the inevitable quarrel, one who would fly back to him the moment she got outside.

"The Crowd" was made with a double ending. One rehabilitates young John and makes a "hero" of him. The other, the REAL one, keeps him human and leaves him right where he belongs—in the Crowd at a vaudeville show, snickering over the antics of a clown on the stage. They showed the bunkless finale at the State yesterday—here's hoping it will be retained.

Mr. Vidor's new picture may not be as popular as "The Big Parade," but it is a better one. Like the original James Murray and Eleanor Boardman, save the hard job of getting "natural." Under the director's guidance they do this excellently, but "The Crowd" is strictly a "director's picture"—most of the good ones are just the same.

BUY NEW STORY FOR DOROTHY MacKAILL

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, April 10—I don't think the wildest stretch of imagination could visualize Dorothy MacKaill as a Jewish girl. She is far too blonde and too English in appearance. But then, of course, I don't know the story of "Dun't Esk," her next picture, following "The Whip," for First National.

I do know "Dun't Esk" has been purchased for her and is the romantic story of a Jewish belle. Dorothy, herself, is enthusiastic over the chance for characterization it gives her. Probably anything would seem welcome after "The Whip." Dorothy, who approaches horseback riding much like some of us look at a snake, is getting along famously, in spite of her nervousness, at being compelled to ride skittish horses.

Charles Brasin, her director, says she has been brave enough to merit the Carnegie medal. But Dot is a good trouper and she will do what she is told.

THAT young Frenchman, Harry D'Arrast, whose work last year as a director of smart farces, merited praise from our most conservative New York reviewers, it is rumored, will make a picture for the Fox Company. List to the title, "Dry Martini."

Wouldn't you know that it is a sophisticated Parisian farce? That's what it is and Albert Gran, delightful farceur, is to have the role of a gay old father with a pretty daughter. Daughter pretends to be very innocent, completely fooling her Dad. Jims Collyer is being mentioned for the role of the pretty daughter. But this, too, is only gossip.

THE "Abie's Irish Rose" company will descend upon New York in a body. I mean the movie troupe. Nancy Carroll, Buddy Rogers and Jean Hersholt, the three principal players, are leaving for Manhattan where they will probably make several personal appearances.

Jesse Lasky who is astute business man must think this is the things to do but if I had a motion picture and three such promising players I'd never let them make a personal appearance. You'd be surprised at the letters I receive expressing disappointment after meeting their ... in face to face.

I don't ... radio is a bit of help, I think. ... ances are often disappointing. Out of the dozens of letters received from Joseph Schenck's radio experiment, most of them were anything but complimentary.

MAY 1, put it down in your little red book, is set as the day when the Colonial Studio will open and production activities will start. "The Diamond Master," by Jacques Futrelle, will be one of the first dramas to face the camera.

William Lord Wright, who wrote one of the pioneer books on scenario writing, will supervise production and a lad named Jack Nelson will furnish the sex appeal. Nelson in the long ago was a Thomas Ince player. Bill Wright, by the way, seems to be some "punkins" at the Universal. I am always hearing of some production or other that he supervised.

A FLASH at a figure that resembled Willie Stevens of the famous Hall-Mills murder trial, gave me an inkling that maybe Willie will figure in the Bellamy Trial" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Kalla Pasha, terrible Turk and well known wrestler, was made up for the part and if it is not talking out of school, he looked it.

Pasha, by the way, is the gentleman who received the contents of several custard pies in Marion Davies' picture, "Polly Preferred" or "Breaking Into the Movies." Take your choice of titles. I know what I am calling it. I knew several days ago.

THEY like Ricardo Cortez, his band of Alma Rubens, and well known leading man, at Tiffany-Stahl. They like him so well they have signed him to make six pictures during 1928-29. You and I know he must have pleased John Stahl and all the rest, to have won that pretty contract. They plan to give him special stories. Ricardo is delighted, so is Tiffany Stahl and also, we hope, will be those who pay their money to see pictures.

• • •

WHILE you are poring over your movies and praising the good right let me saw it was Al Cohn who wrote the adaptation of "The Cat and the Canary," the first of the murder mysteries, and let me add an additional word and say that he will probably write the sequel, "The Catpaw." At least, we assume he is the logical person to write it. Al knows his scenario writing.

KLAN USED WOMEN AS DECOYS IN PLOTS, CLAIMS EX-DRAGON

SCANDAL MONGERS FAILED IN PLAN TO RUIN LAWYER

This is the third in a series of articles on Ku Klux Klan outrages as revealed in an affidavit by David C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Klan in Indiana. Today's article reveals how the klansmen used women decoys in carrying out some of their plots. Stephenson is serving a life term in prison for murder.

(Copyright, 1928, by the Boston Evening American and International News Service. Reproduction in Whole or Part Absolutely Prohibited.)

Chicago, April 10—In previous chapters Stephenson has outlined the origin of the klan, of the framing of its original leaders on Mann act charges and of discussion of actual plots to murder others who stood in the way of those who sought to use the organization for their own purposes.

Q.—You have previously stated that you were in accord with a certain program which you had for the States you represented and that you were likewise opposed to a program that was presided over by others in other sections. Will you state if the plaintiff organization had a national program and if it was uniform or had different ideas and conceptions of carrying on the work of the plaintiff organization?

A.—There was no national policy. After Col Simmons was retired from the organization in the manner I have previously described, the policy could be best described as a policy of expediency; that is to say in the absence of nationally directed action there was done in the local community that thing thought best to serve their own interests. And also to assuage the anxieties of those who had attempted to oppose them.

COMMITTEE'S REPORT

"Perhaps the best illustration of this would be to call attention to a meeting of the second day of June, 1923, in the New Willard Hotel in Washington, D. C., for the purpose of settling or proclaiming to the membership and the public the program of the Klan.

"Previous to this meeting they designated as a program committee a Mr. McCall, the deputy constable of Houston, Tex., and a Mr. Orbison, a lawyer from Indianapolis, to devise a national program and report on June 2 to a group of men referred to as the Imperial Klonclium. Translated from mysticism to plain English that means a group of 16 men appointed to aid the membership into believing they had national officers.

"Pursuant to the call previously described we met in the New Willard Hotel on June 2, and the committee of the lawyer and the deputy constable assembled to make their report to that body and this is substantially what they reported:

"They reported that they had carefully canvassed the situation and had concluded that it would be the national program of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan—that is, the program of the committee composed of the lawyer and the deputy constable —to issue statements to the public at various times through the medium of the newspapers.

"I was accompanied to that meeting by a man of national reputation who sincerely had upon his heart the welfare of the American people. He was disappointed at the report made that he left the meeting in disgust. Asked for permission to address the meeting, I said substantially this:

3 MILLION IN ORDER

"'Gentlemen, I am informed that there are in the United States at this time some 3,000,000 members of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, possibly more. An audit of the books has not been made, and it is impossible to tell what the membership is, but whether it is 2000 or 3,000,000 or 20,000,000, the time has come when we must not only tell the membership, but we must tell the public something of why we are assembling together this large group of men and what the purpose of it is.

"'Speaking for my own States, there are a number of educated gentlemen who have identified themselves with the klan, some of them ministers of the gospel with national reputation and on every hand they are asking me, "Stephenson, what is it all about, what is your program, what do you aim to do? What is the objective, why do you assemble this group of men together, and what do you propose to accomplish by their assembly and vote?

"'Every day these questions are being asked me, and the time has come when an intelligent answer must be returned. I have stood before meetings of the citizens of my State and told them that the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan stood for 100 per cent Americanism; that it stood for devotion to God and to country; that it believed in the upholding of the law; that it stood for close relation of capital and labor; and that it stood valiantly and courageously for State rights; and that it stood for the separation of the church and the State.

"'That it also stood for every thing else that is pointed on what we construe as a platform under the head of a Non Silvis Sed Anther which, translated into English, means not for self but for others, and that is a beautiful program.

FAVORED POLITICS

"'But since we have told all of these men and women who have become members of the organization that we stand for these things, it strikes me that their common sense will lead them to the conclusion that there are only two ways by which this program can be accomplished.

"'One of the means is by direct action by mob violence, the other is by going into politics and electing for public office men who will put into practice the program we preach; and since the section of the country from which I hail is not one that would discrace itself by engaging in mob violence, it seems to me that the only course left open for us is to go into politics, not as a partisan group, but as men, determined to change the principle from speech and platitudes to actual realization.

"'And I have come here today in the hope that this official assembly will give me something that I can take back to answer intelligently the questions of the half million men and women in the organization over which I have control.'

"This is substantially the discussion that took place, one man replying that he did not know as, thing of our financial program that he was not posted on governmental affairs; that he had no understanding of the needs of the masses of the people, that he did not want to engage in an activity of that kind.

PETTY INTRIGUE

"He also said that he thought the national program for the klan for the present would stand or be carried out by issuing statements at different intervals by the deputy constable and the lawyer.

"I conferred that way with a man from Denver, Colo., who told me that in his state the klan, under direction, was engaging in every kind of petty political intrigue known to a ward heeler.

"He asked me if I knew of a number of instances where a woman had been used to besmirch the name of good men. I told him that I knew of a number of instances where they had done that, then informed him that I have just told you about efforts to involve the names of Col. Simmons and Capt. Coburn with that woman in some manner that would reflect upon these two gentlemen.

"I also told the Denver man at the time of an instance where they had imported to Atlanta, and lodged in the Cecil Hotel, the same woman used to frame the Mann Act violations against Col. E. Y. Clark, and that the purpose of having this same woman returned to Atlanta and engaged in a new campaign to frame Capt. Coburn was to prevent him from exposing some hideous thing of which I have no knowledge.

CITES OTHER CASES

"I never took the trouble to learn, beyond the fact that it had to do with a term of penal servitude by one man in his early youth and had to do with his parentage of a child, with the details of which I am not familiar.

Q.—Stephenson, do you know of any other instances wherein women were made to attack the character of innocent men? A.—Yes, sir. I know of a great many instances.

Q.—Will you briefly state some of the more prominent and conspicuous ones that stand out in your personal memory?

A.—Beyond the instances described as that of Clark, Coburn, Col. Simmons, Dr. Johnson, perhaps the next most conspicuous is that of a man by the name of Charles G. Palmer, a splendid fellow who lives in Chicago Ill., and is very happily married.

"At one time he was the Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in the State of Illinois, and in that capacity he became very popular with the membership throughout the state.

"They decided to break him, as they called it, and men were set the task of learning the personal habits of Palmer. One of them rode on a train from Cairo, Ill., to Chicago, where Palmer occupied a berth with a woman. As they alighted from the train on the following morning a man succeeded in photographing Palmer and the woman that accompanied him on the train.

"He thereafter took the photographs together with his own affidavit describing their actions on the train and delivered them to a federal agent in Chicago, Ill., and insisted that Palmer be indicted for violating the Mann act. The affidavit stated that Palmer had accompanied the woman from St. Louis to Cairo, thence to Chicago.

"The federal agent happened to know Palmer and knew that he was a gentleman of unimpeached integrity. Also, that he was a responsible member of the Chicago bar, and in every respect a worthy and upright citizen. He therefore was very careful in his investigation and finally showed the picture to Palmer, and Palmer said to him:

"Yes, it is true that I accompanied that woman—or rather—she accompanied me—on the train on the night described in your affidavit, and unless some misfortune happens to the future, she will doubtless accompany me on many other trips, because she happens to be my wife. She will arrive at the office in a short time and I will be glad to have you accompany Mrs. Palmer and me to dinner.'

PLOT BLEW UP

"And that blew up in a soapbubble, the effort to frame Palmer on that particular trip.

"But thereafter they sent a stenographer from Atlanta, Ga., by the name of Nettie something. I don't know what her last name is. She is another one who has a long string of aliases after her first name and has been known in some instances as 'Big Nettie.' She was on the payroll and was known to be a notorious police court character.

"She worked for Palmer about a month—or rather, it is more accurate to say, she worked in Chicago in an effort to make a permanent connection with Palmer's office or in his social life.

"The nearest she ever came to succeeding with her plan was to follow Mr. Palmer to Springfield on two occasions, one of which was about October 30 or from October 30 to November 10, 1923. It was very shortly after this time that Capt. Coburn was killed in Atlanta, Ga. She cleared out of Atlanta for fear of being involved on account of her efforts to frame Capt. Coburn at the time of his murder.

Follow this amazing expose of the Klan by one of its own chiefs in Wednesday's Boston Evening American. Details of murders, floggings, lynchings and of men burned alive will be fully revealed in this series.

No National Klan Policy, Stephenson Reveals

A FEATURE of today's amazing disclosure of klan secrets by David C. Stephenson, former Grand Dragon of the klan of Indiana, reveals that the klan had no national policy. Explaining this, Stephenson says:

'After Colonel Simmons was retired from the organization in the manner I have previously described, the policy could be best described as a policy of expediency; that is to say in the absence of nationally directed will, there was done in the local community that thing thought best to serve their own interests. And also to assuage the anxieties of those who had attempted to oppose them.'' other Klansmen were delegated to take a man to Bellaire and kill him.

He said the night riders went out to "administer justice to the offending citizen" and that he was taken to Bellaire. Ramsey said he refused to obey orders to kill the man and brought him back alive. Ramsey named a "Mr. Bronson" as a member of the Ohio grand dragon guard and the night riders.

Van A. Barrickman, a defendant in one of the suits and counsel for the five ousted Klansmen who seek a receivership for the Klan in this state, asked Ramsey if he had any knowledge of Imperial Wizard Hiram Evans sending a curlosi of Klansmen into Mexico to stir up trouble between the United States and that country.

The question was ruled out on an objection by John H. Connaughton Klan attorney.

Testimony of placing responsibility for the Niles, O., riot in the fall of 1924 upon deputy sheriffs who were members of the Klan, was given by Roy G. Barclay, former Klan private detective known as "G-2."

He said the Niles deputy sheriff-klansmen had halted both negroes and whites on the streets, and when the citizens did not give them satisfactory answers to certain questions they were "shoved aside." Finally, he said, some of the citizens objected to this treatment, and the riot was on.

Barclay testified that the Klan had mounted machine guns in Niles prior to the demonstration.

Asked about a riot at Lily, Pa., Barclay said the fight was between klansmen and citizens, and that to his knowledge one man was killed.

John H. Connaughton, Washington, D. C., chief counsel for the klan moved that Barclay's testimony be stricken from the record. The motion was overruled by Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson.

Telling of the bombing of the West Dayton Klan temple, Ramsey said the riders placed dynamite in front of the building and set it off. He said that shortly thereafter a brick was thrown through a window of the structure bearing a note of warning that the place would be bombed if the klan used it for meetings.

He said the grand dragon of Ohio then summoned the klansmen and told them to go out, seek revenge and fight. He said he did not know who threw the brick.

When Barrickman asked Ramsey if the riders were given instructions to kill, a klan objection was overruled and the witness testified such instructions had been given by the "chief."

He then recited the order to take a certain citizen for a ride to Bellaire.

Ramsey testified to one attempt the riders made to burn a church near Dayton.

COOLIDGE OPPOSES ANY CUT IN P. O. REVENUES

Washington, April 10 (AP)—President Coolidge feels that any modification in the postal rates that Congress may decide upon should not further lower revenues. He holds the postoffice department is already being run at a loss and that the loss should not be increased to the point where the operations would be downright uneconomical.

CLUB MANAGER FINED $100 IN PICTURES CASE

Art in a magazine and art on the walls of a club are two different things, according to Judge Sullivan in municipal court today, when he fined Michael Waishek, manager of the Syrian Social Club, Harrison ave., $100 for having improper pictures in his possession.

Waishek said he copied the pictures from an art magazine and produced the magazine, but the court ruled against him. He was also fined $50 and given one month for keeping and exposing liquor for sale. He appealed. Gabriel Lunio of Tyler st., also arrested, was found not guilty.

FIND SUPPOSED RICH WOMAN STARVING

One of the Four Horsemen rode through the Back Bay district and stopped at 196 Dartmouth st.

The rider was Hunger. He doesn't plenty of riding through Boston lately because of the unemployment situation but nobody expected him to stop at the imposing apartment houses in the exclusive residential section.

But there he was, and investigators found his victim, Kate R. Morris, supposedly wealthy and 60 years old actually starving to death.

The woman whose pride would not permit her to appeal to those who had known her for 40 years had been without food for at least three days, probably much longer than that, and malnutrition has so affected her entire system that physicians at the City Hospital despair of saving her life.

For years she had maintained what was supposed to be a prosperous business, the Boylston Business Agency, at the apartment where she made her home.

It was the agent for the building, H. I. Chase, who noticed that there had been a light steadily burning in her apartment for three days and nights, and he notified the Back Bay police.

They gained entrance through a window and found the starving woman unconscious in bed. There was no food of any kind in the apartment.

Her starving had affected her heart so that the physicians at City Hospital have a double battle on their hands to save her.

"PORGY" WINS OUT WITH BOSTON CENSORS

"Porgy," the much discussed play at the Hollis, that was fearful of going by way of the official censorsaxe, will continue, according to rising made at City Hall today. The first infringement on the spokesman for the Theatre Guild agreed to some few elisions that will hardly be missed by the censorship centered around the free use of the name of Jesus in the play.

Tunney and Heeney Will Draw Million Braves in Spotlight

By NICK FLATLEY

THEY'RE FIRING FOR NEXT MILLION DOLLAR GATE

THE conversation has started about the Tunney-Heeney fight, and long before the battle is fought the boys will be convinced that the greatest ring war of all time is just ahead. You can't keep a squirrel off the ground any more than you can keep a fight fanatic away from a heavyweight title bout.

There is nothing to indicate that the next large collision will be anything more than a sparring match, and the pessimists are inclined to think that the gate will fall below the million mark. But that's applesauce. The departure of colorful Jack Dempsey is cause for moans and wails, for the Mauler could park 'em in

But even without Jack, or anybody even closely approaching him as an attraction, it's easy in these days of the big heat-up to snag something like a million for any kind of a heavyweight row that has a title attached.

The literary young man who here lately has been calling Mister Heeney things that would not sound well in a drawing room will proceed to explain that Thomas, from Down Under, is quite a fighter, after all. They will do it honestly, incidentally. The excitement that precedes a big battle somehow seems to knock judgment right into the ashcan.

Mister Tunney is not what you could call popular, and almost a million dollars' worth of customers, at Rickard rates, will flock around any time there's even a wild chance that Gene will be knocked hopeless from under his crown. Mister Heeney has shown nothing in the way of rock that would give him that chance, but the boys will hypnotize themselves into thinking so between now and June.

THE AVERAGE FAN WOULD MAKE A GREAT LEADOFF MAN. HE'LL WAIT AROUND A WEEK FOR A PASS.

RUMORS START MORE TRADES THAN MAGNATES DO

IT is quite evident that the Boston Braves have baseball experts all over the land wondering what's going to happen next. Each time some good player is mentioned as possible trading material, some ex or other ships him to the Braves. The nifty way in which the Tribe bosses lassoed both Hornsby and Bell has stirred up general admiration.

The word has gone around that there's plenty of money in Boston and it is likewise voted unanimously that the David Harums of this sector know their oats. There may be a trade with Cincinnati, now that the matter has been aerated over. The Tribe tried to buy Kelly and Donohue during the winter, but couldn't get 'em.

The pitcher hasn't signed and the big first baseman would just as soon play in some other village. When conditions like that exist with the season some twenty-four hours away, there's always a chance for quick bit of swapping business.

SCHWARTZ GIVES SOUTH AMERICAN CHAMP PASTING

Komar Confident of Victory Over M'Leod

Joe Bill Komar believes he will have a good chance to defeat George McLeod in their feature bout at the Grand Opera House Thursday night.

In fact if confidence counts for anything Komar has the match won. He can't conceive even a chance for McLeod. He believes that his strength will overcome the speed of McLeod and wear him down until he will be able to clamp on a deciding hold.

McLeod has better and stronger [illegible] than Komar, but he lacks the [illegible] punching power which Komar has. [illegible] were matched and it looks deadly.

If he puts the same brand of stuff in his encounter with Komar then the Bill is in for a busy evening.

Of equal interest is the match between Henry Colopoon, Italian Heavyweight champion from Somerville, and Duane [illegible] Somerville.

Why Is Thirteen Called a Baker's Dozen?

THIRTEEN is called a baker's dozen because there was once a law imposing a heavy fine on bakers who gave short weight. The bakers were so afraid of the fine that they made sure of themselves by giving overweight.

This Day in Our History

SHERMAN'S famous march through Georgia started on April 10, 1864, with Savannah as the objective. It was when criticized for the actions of his troops during the march that Sherman used the famous expression, "War is hell."

"Jerry" by ELENORE MEHERIN AUTHOR of "CHICKIE"

A Story of Mad Moonlight Kisses and a Wonderful Young Girl

CHAPTER 61.

"OF all the men on the face of the earth, why is it he and he only who makes the very air tingle for me? Why does he seem to fill the room with light?" Jerry asked herself.

Saxon came toward her with his eyes and that clean dark look that made even his teeth seem extra scrubbed. She regarded him excitedly.

"Did you look at mirrors?" Jerry asked. Why so?"

"A long, sad story, one dear."

"And you're brown as the wilds."

"A wild week in the sun with golf and swimming."

"And loving? I hear Hugh has come down. Has extremely persistent, hasn't he?"

"Are you curious about Hugh and me, Saxon?"

"Yes I am. And I'd like to know if you took him out to that h—"

"Why the sentiment for a mere matter of geography?" Saxon laughed. "We're indeed as innocent as babes. And I had such wild moments when I feared you were coming down to lead a hue and cry after me."

"I had no intention of coming down for the weekend. Artistic things I had too much work to do. Way don't you come and let me show you my pictures? I've been waiting for you to ask about them. Why would I lead anyone out to this hole?"

"A romantic spot to nurse the grand arsenal. I hear the golf is dope. Saxon. And I sure do like golf course. Again."

"What did you hear?"

That you and Mary are to be married."

He colored and looked away. But she needn't guessing that it would before. I may never have the chance. "Was the news news, Jerry? Were you surprised at the father of your child marrying in for entertainment? I would be more than glad to do the honorable thing by Mary. Come the horrid beast!"

"If I marry Mary it will not be a harsh labor-I bear me. There is no insane optimism about it. I will be into it eyes open, and the only happiness. That's pure

"If I go into it, it's because I'm sick of one-night stands. There's nothing much in the world left for me from the girl of my dreams. And I'm tired of—and tired of—being and tired of—behind—and I know I will never be—"

"Why, Jerry, you're crying!"

"I'm not crying. As a wife I want some security to my life, some regularity.

"And you once warned me when I seemed worth while to get excited about—if I keep on the way I'm going. I'll be that punch board. And besides I'd love you just for the sake of form.

"The gray shade of the twenties has this depressing power before him. At forty-two is no better than a phonograph repeating old songs.

"I'm not going to be this kind of flapper from the past to the flappers of 1924. Used and patronized to my face, ridiculed for a whitty old bore behind my back. I'm the forlorn fate of perennial bachelorhood.

"I had enough to be Don Juan in rompers, Jerry. I certainly don't aspire to be Don Juan in a wheel chair. Taking it all in all marriage can go no worse for a man.

"But if not must marry, Saxon, who can do it but Mary Burke?"

"Why not?" said he, watching with narrowed eyes the treat he was to her. "She's good-looking, attractive. I tell you she fits in with the kind of life I want. Why not Jerry? Aren't my best interests at stake as well as hers? I never got on with her good sense."

"I'll put a crop of hair on your chin soon to suit from the rest of you. And there'll be no room for mirrors to gaze by meta-physics. Just as the fish in the sea has ever were caught. And the real wars will be fought in out your."

So it rests no small price on that score. You're not very young, Saxon. Let me remind you that you've got to settle down sometime. Why not with Mary? She has many admirable qualities. I'm sure she'll make you a good wife. Why don't you? Why don't you? Why don't you? Why don't you?

UNFORTUNATE ACCIDENT BEFALLS CONGRESSMAN

Telegraph Editor,
Dear Sir:

I purchased a pair of sample shoes and found, after wearing them, they were both for the left foot. That evening I took my stenographer to the movie. The shoe on my right foot was so uncomfortable that I had to slip it off unbeknown to the girl friend. After the movie was out I felt around for my shoe. Apparently some one had kicked it down several rows ahead of us. I had to get the usher to help find it with his flash light. This kept me up so late that I was unable to write my daily dispatch.

Improving Child's Powers

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

"WHERE did you put the hammer, Joe?"

The question came from the child's father in a hurried, scolding tone.

"I don't know," was the hesitating answer.

"Well, think! Think hard!" demanded the father. He stood over the child in an attitude that drove every thought from Joe's brain except the one of his father's threatening nearness.

Then Aunt Abbie opened the kitchen door and beckoned to the child.

"I wonder if that hammer is in the coal house?" she said in an easy, conversational ton

"No, I haven't been in the coal house."

"Where have you been today?" she questioned gently.

"I was down in the cellar this morning. And then I was over at Frank's house. Oh, yes! I believe I left the hammer in Frank's garage. We were making a scooter in there."

And the child's face lighted with relief as he ran to the adjoining yard to find the lost hammer.

If you wish to drive every idea out of a child's head and leave him fumbling in mental blankness, tell him to "think hard." The only thing a little fellow knows about thinking hard is to frown up his face and stare vacantly at nothing at all. He snaps into a tense condition, physically and mentally. How can he think then?

A certain mother who has very little physical strength and a lot of nervous energy, gradually worked out a plan of relief for her own use. Then she induced her children to adopt these little devices for preserving their nerves, their dispositions and their general fitness.

"I used to sit forward on the street car and help propel it by a sort of mental urging," she laughed. "By the time I reached my destination I was fatigued from the useless effort. One day I discovered that I could relax entirely during the 15 or 20 minutes that I was traveling and that the street car would run just as rapidly without my assistance as with it. I also found that I was rested at the end of the short trip and ready to attack my next job with renewed energy.

"I have always suffered with eye-strain," she continued. "And most of my life I have been staring at printed lines in an effort to read. One day a friend said, 'Don't look so hard. Fix your eyes calmly and casually upon the printed lines and your eyesight will adjust itself and you can read with much less effort.

"I learned from an eye specialist a simple method of resting my eyes' she continued. "Every now and then I place the palms of my hands over my eyes and keep them there five minutes or more. The relaxation worked wonders."

If school teachers would stop several times a day and introduce 5 minutes of this "palming" exercise into the day's routine it would aid discipline.

The relaxation of the whole body comes naturally with palming. And the saving of the children's eyesight is a good investment. The time that seems to be lost from class work will be made up in renewed energy, bodily welfare and mental alertness.

Every mother and every teacher would find it profitable to stop a few times every day and say to herself, "Relax! Relax! Relax! Let down. Take it easy."

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE Free Bachelor is a product of America.

He is a distinctly American institution, like watermelon and green corn and rocking chairs and chewing gum and ice cream soda.

Other countries may have their stay bachelors, here and there, but nowhere else save in America will you find them by the millions. They grow, they flourish, they flower here, like the maize and the golden rod. They are one with the American eagle—bird of FREEDOM!

In other countries, bachelors are rare and almost always accidental.

In England a bachelor is usually a morose or pathetic creature, the victim of a bad liver, a depleted fortune, or a broken heart. On the Continent he is a freak, and in the Orient he is an object of scorn, pity or suspicion

But in America any bachelor of over thirty-five is invariably a bachelor by CHOICE! He has fought hard, long and scientifically to protect his freedom and his single-blessedness and his sacred bachelor hearth.

He is a martial "Bolshevist"—a red revolutionist against feminine autocracy and the tyranny of what he calls the "spoiled modern woman."

He has looked carefully on while other men, gay, carefree and debonair as himself were caught, blindfolded, hackled into the shafts and either broken to double harness or hitched to the domestic plough. He is wary!

He only knows too well that the snaffle and the curb are waiting for him, and he is suspicious of apples, applesauce and sugar.

He builds a wall around his heart, has his emotions insulated, and en trenches himself in a bachelor apartment, surrounded and defended by all the modern comforts, including the harmless attentions of many admiring matrons and devoted dowagers. Married women are his meter.

He FIGHTS—he fights valiantly to escape! For him it looks as though he had everything to lose—and nothing to gain except a slight reduction in his income tax.

But, happily his is a lost cause from the start. What chance has a chicken crossing the Boston post road? Or a "confirmed" bachelor in a world full of women? He seldom dies with his bachelor buttons on.

There always comes "der tag"—the DAY when he is weary, or careless, or bored, or curious or peevish, or sorry for himself. The day when he succumbs at last, to some baby-eyed flapper who calls him "Daddy" and teaches him the latest dance steps. The Day of the Marrying Mood!

Let him flutter gaily on his blithesome way—poor butterfly. For, after all, BACHELORS are what women marry. And the more, the marry-er!

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomach. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been over-stimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never be sick another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia" prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle— any druggists.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

How's Your Spelling?

Beat Aram Belanger, If You Can

This year's champion speller of the grammar schools of New Bedford is discovered in Aram Belanger, 13, whose teachers are Sisters of the Holy Cross and his school, St. Anthony's.

Aram's competitors numbered 29. They represented Roosevelt, Ashley, Wood, Taylor, Rodman, Swift, Knowlton, Parker, all the public and many parochial institutions.

The bee was promoted by The Evening Standard, which lists as follows the 24 words that finally cleared the field of all contestants save the little Franco-American from Fairhaven:

gallery	addition	welcome	initial
valve	radius	genius	talent
menace	ancient	occurrence	alfalfa
allege	criticize	heifer	rarefied
kimono	aluminum	effigy	jeopardize
menagerie	treacherous	efficiency	prophecy

At the end of two hours only one boy and one girl were left, Aram and Florence Armstrong, of St. Mary's. Florence remained with the "champ" seven minutes, hurdled successfully a dozen or more "demon" words and finally came to grief over "prophecy."

Master Belanger will be groomed for the Southeastern Massachusetts bee, to be decided on Patriots' Day. He MAY get his chance in the National contest.

We wish The Standard could have printed more of the difficult words of the New Bedford competition. Was "handful" on the list? We know a newspaper worker of ripe experience who is forever having trouble with "handful." Other common, everyday words which sometimes tease the grown-up are "whose" and "too."

The ancient spelling bee has returned to the stage to enjoy a run equal to that of the rejuvenated debate. Neither is at all likely to displace football as an "attraction," but the spelling competition appeals to fathers and mothers who are eager to know "what the schools are doing."

Beautiful? Yes

MOST BEAUTIFUL? No

A BEAUTIFUL CHILD

First, you should be told that this child is a boy, not a girl. A British advertisement prints the picture and calls it "The World's Most Beautiful Child." The handsome, childish face and beautifully developed young body will interest mothers. Fortunately, each of them will insist that her child is MORE beautiful than this one.

The human race progresses because every mother believes her baby is a wonder and gives to the child full love, devotion and ambition.

Studying the face of this child offered for comment in a public advertisement, it is interesting to speculate on the boy's probable future. You would hardly expect a Gladstone, a Nelson, a Carlyle, Spencer or Darwin to develop from this lovely boy.

There is such a thing as being TOO beautiful, too soft and delicate.

There is thoughtfulness in this young face. If the hair were brushed back from the forehead, as it should be, you would see probably a brow well developed and promising.

But beauty in men is a great handicap. The ugly man thinks less of himself and more of things that are more important. And women are less inclined to help him make a fool of himself.

This is a charming little British boy, and everybody will wish him all possible happiness. But there are in existence, not far from him, boys with plain, little faces, snub-noses, sharp knees, warts on their hands, freckles on their faces, that will far surpass this handsome child. Let that be your comfort, if your small boy lacks ninety-nine per cent of the qualities of a professional beauty—as he probably does.

Killing for Killing

That Won't Discourage Crime

It is predicted that Michigan will restore the death penalty, long since abolished, because of the murder of a five-year-old child.

Two days after he was caught the child's murderer was

BIGGEST BUSINESS IS EDUCATION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE greatest business in the world anywhere and at any time is the business of educating and training the young.

Just as the household centers about its children in all its hopes and plans, just as for them the father works and the mother sacrifices, so in the case of a nation everything should turn about the improvement of its young people.

On them and on their fitness rests the future safety of the nation more than on any plans or schemes or institutions which their fathers may set in motion.

Always the character of a people has more to do with the success of a nation than the institutions or customs it may have, or the defense which it may possess.

A recent press statement was to the effect that 250 American cities having over 30,000 population each, spent on public schools in 1926, $607,000,000, or one-third of their income. That sounds like a good deal of money, but it is only $6.30 per capita in big cities, which is less than we spend on chewing gum.

What we spend money for is the best sign of what we desire most.

A Britisher the other day gave 500,000 pounds to his government to be applied toward the English debt. This was an unparalleled act of patriotism. Men will give their lives for their country, while few are willing to give money.

So we orate and write and grow enthusiastic over our public schools. But the test of our appreciation of them comes best by spending money on them.

The school teacher should be better paid and he should rank higher in the community than he does.

The superintendent of public schools should be the best paid official in the city and the most carefully selected. And he needs to be a person of more outstanding ability than the mayor.

The school buildings should be, and in some places are, the most remarkable pieces of architecture in a community.

Every city should have plenty of playgrounds for children.

To the credit of America it is that it has more juvenile publications and printed matter, especially for the reading of children, than has any other country.

Every man and woman ought to be in some way connected with assisting the younger generation to make good.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

FUNNY about Fanny. There's a girl you'd say had all the makings for a successful career. Bright, attractive, hard working, polite, punctual, neat, sympathetic, reliable—with such a battery of virtues, Fanny should have the world by the tail after seven years of business experience. But she hasn't—instead, she is still grubbing along at a job that's little better than her first position.

During those seven years, girl after girl has shot ahead of her. Many of them weren't half as hard workers as Fanny, yet they were given promotions while she was overlooked.

Fanny's pretty bitter about it. She's beginning to say sneering things about "decent girls having no chance nowadaws." She honestly thinks that there's some mysterious, immoral prejudice working against her. But there isn't. The reason for Fanny's failure is tragically simple.

She has no initiative. She isn't a self-starter.

She's a fine, accurate tool—but that lets her out. Consequently she ranks in with the rest of the filing cabinets and rubber stamps. While the girls who ARE self-starters—the girls who lift the boss' burden by assuming responsibility and going ahead on their own—get all the rewards.

Like every normal baby, Fanny was a Go-getter when she was born. She was curious and eager and excited about this new world. She wanted to grab and make experiments and run ahead and do things for herself. But every time she cried, Mother and Father cried "DON'T!"

Sometimes they said "Don't!" because they were alarmed. Sometimes, because they were cross. Usually they said "Don't!" because they thought that was the way to bring up little girls. They thought that Obedience was the First and Greatest Virtue—and they were sure that parents who allowed their children to be unruly and restless were a disgrace to the community.

It never occurred to them that some day Fanny must go out into a rushing world where people would be too busy to do her thinking for her—where she'd have to be a Self-Starter or be left behind in the race. They could only see the little world in which they lived, the little law by which they functioned. And, of course, like most parents, they really liked to boss.

So bit by bit they crushed out the individuality in Fanny and developed fear of all new or risky departures. They did not know they were hurting her. They thought that such fear was wholesome. They called it "conservatism." They were sure that their bright, pretty, docile little girl had everything needful for a great success. They would be appalled if you told them that they have crippled her as surely as if they had bound her feet or broken her spine.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

ONLY a sweep of waters green,
Only a wind-swept sky,
Cloud-banners trailing, and between
Blossoms of sunset die.

Strange, how a picture can set aside
Years with their joy and pain;
Strange, how the sight of that ebbing tide
Wakens thought's sleeping train!

Strange, how it beckons and calls to me,
Stirring old memories dim,
Only a line where sky and sea
Meet at the Earth's far rim!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 10—The value of space in New York is strikingly illustrated by its variety of tiny shops blooming in crevices of skyscrapers, doorways and halls of buildings. In these miniature stands men and women make a good living.

The smallest store in town is that of a locksmith—one of those keys-made-while-you-wait places. It is eighteen inches wide across the front and three feet deep. Customers transact their business from the sidewalk window and the proprietor has been able to provide for a large family from his profits.

On Seventh ave. is a pie-shaped jewelry store, with room for proprietor and three customers. Most of the stock is in the window. The rent is $4,000 a year, but the owner is able to come to work in an auto. His trade is confined almost exclusively to theatrical folk.

On the lower East Side is a cigar-maker with a cubby-hole three feet wide and six feet deep, and he has two employes. The smallest florist shop used to be in a lower Broadway hotel with room for four customers and did a business of some $30,000 a year.

There are innumerable soft drink stands in the congested mid-town district paying annual rentals from $25,000 to $60,000 and with five and ten cent patronage have made the proprietors rich. One theatrical ticket agency with space six feet wide and four feet deep pays rental of $28,000 yearly.

That these holes-in-the-wall in crowded sections are profitable is illustrated by a man who had a three-storied printing shop in a New Jersey town employing 28 people. It went into bankruptcy. He came to New York with less than $300 and opened a one-man printery on sixth ave.

He had just enough room for three cases of type and a small hand press and specialized in while-you-wait calling cards and stationery. At the end of three years he was able to buy his own home and his profits are greater than those of his best year in the larger establishment. So he sticks to his hole in the wall.

NEW YORK may soon have high-grade musical shows at low prices. A scheme is on tap to build a large theater so arranged every seat is desirable, the depth being sacrificed to width, and playing to a $2.50 top price. It will be able to play to $56,000 weekly, which will permit its sponsors to engage talent now employed by $10 top shows.

THEATRICAL managers see no immediate hope of a reduction in salaries for actors. With the glorified movies, owing to tremendous seating capacity, able to pay stupendous stipends, there is nothing left but for legitimate producers to meet the scale or sink.

THE adroitness of pickpockets has reached a high spot. The mob had mingled out an immigrant, who, after years of back-breaking ditch-digging and painful frugality, drew his $2000 from a savings bank to take to Italy. He carried his purse in a pair of trousers whose pocket was protected with safety pins. Over these trousers he wore two other pairs. He was followed to the subway and then by a process of jostling and squeezing that continued until he passed over the gang plank, the wallet was lifted.

PICKPOCKETS in difficult hauls work in sets of threes—the "stall," the "hook" and the "line." The "stall" does the jostling to throw the victim off guard, the "hook" does the actual purse-lifting and then passes it to the "line," who makes the getaway.

THE leather lifter is not, always the dapper type with manicured hands. Clever dips nowadays often dress as day laborers and make their hands look greasy and grimy to help throw off suspicion. The subway remains the paradise for the nimble-fingered genius.

ONE of these off days I must scout for some porch-climbing gossip. Their season opens on Long Island shortly.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By Leola Allard

A LADY met Harry Lauder at a dinner party recently and asked him to tell her a Scotch joke. He informed her that he had a rich one, perfectly new, but he was saving it for his show.

Wouldn't he?

Julia Dennis, whose marriage did not anesthetize her sense of humor, remarked in court that maybe instead of having two ceremonies they should have stopped with the civil ceremony. A civil husband, she thought, would have been much better than what she had.

"But with a civil one," was the husband's retort courteous, "I would have had civil service rights, and you would have had to stick for some years to come. I think myself that would have been an improvement."

Then nothing answered anything.

"No wonder men fall in love with her," said an unjealous female, "That girl has the seven years it."

Marshall Peters of Chicago got arrested for breaking down the door of the apartment overhead, in order to stop the noise so he could sleep. The woman who complained and who made the disturbance that caused Mr. Peters to knock down the door talked so much in court the judge grew desperate and dismissed the case, vowing the statute of limitations would have run its course by the time the women stopped talking.

"Well, you can move," a bystander told Mr. Peters. "What if you were married to her?"

And Mr. Peters felt better.

sent to prison to stay there for life at hard labor.

In California, where they retain capital punishment, another little girl was kidnaped and murdered by a youth named Hickman. That individual is in prison, reading his "fan" mail and enjoying the excitement, with no belief that he will be hanged in his mind or in that of his attorneys.

If Michigan goes back to capital punishment, the number of murders will increase rather than diminish.
